BONES OF PREHISTORIC ANIMALS, 400,000 YEARS OLD, UNEARTHED IN ORANGE COUNTY

'Black Legion's' Reign of Terror Bared

FEAR SCORES VICTIMIZED BY GANG

Four of Detroit Secret Society Admit Killing of WPA Worker

DETROIT, May 23. (AP)—Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea ordered an investigation today of reports that scores of victims had been terrorized by vigilantes of the "Black Legion," secret society uncovered by the arrest of 16 men in connection with the "execution" of Charles A. Poole, WPA worker.

Prosecutor McCrea said the arrests had been followed by a stream of reports from citizens who said they had been the victims of the group.

Have 10,000 Members
William W. Voisine, Ecocore village manager, said police were investigating the possibility that members of the organization, said by officials to have numbered 10,000, bombed his home last Aug. 7.

Voisine's home was bombed while he and his wife, and a 13-year-old son were asleep in upstairs bedrooms. None was injured by the blast.

Police announced the arrest of 16 members of the legion Friday, and four of them, Police Inspector John I. Navarre said, confessed they participated in the "execution" of Poole on a suburban road May 13 after he was accused of beating his wife.

Accused Keep Silent
"I am not satisfied that we have been told the real motive for the killing of Poole," Prosecutor McCrea said. "Certainly it was not for beating his wife; that's too fantastic to believe."

Most of the 16 members in custody adhered to the society's password of "secrecy always." At least one, however, talked vaguely. (Please Turn to Page 2, Col. 6)

Huge Plane in Forced Landing

BERLIN, May 23. (AP)—The Deutschland, "one of the largest land planes in the world, was damaged badly in a forced landing last night.

The plane, which has a capacity of 42 passengers and seven crewmen and is powered with four motors, was forced down with six men aboard near the Junkers factory at Dessau, during a trial flight.

Save Field Widow From Eviction

HEAFFORD JUNCTION, Wis., May 23. (AP)—Payment of a $2600 mortgage today saved the home of Mrs. Eugene Field, 80-year-old widow of the poet, from sale under a foreclosure judgment.

George Curtis, attorney for the mortgagee, announced receipt of a check to cover the mortgage from representatives of Phi Delta Theta, Field's fraternity.

23 Railroads Fight Cut Rates

NEW YORK, May 23. (AP)—Twenty-three eastern railroads filed federal suit today to enjoin the interstate commerce commission from enforcing orders establishing new rates of 2 cents a mile for coach and 3 cents for Pullman cars.

The lower rates were ordered by the commission Feb. 25 last to become effective June 2.

TEXAS BANS NEGRO VOTING

AUSTIN, Tex., May 23. (AP)—Attorney General William McGraw ruled today that negroes had been barred from voting in the Texas Democratic primary elections.

The opinion was given to Miss Emilie Limberg, Travis county clerk, in response to an inquiry. It further stated that a resolution adopted by the state Demo-

They'll Take Vows Under Water

If they can find a minister willing to don a diving suit, Capt. John C. Benson of Seattle, retired, and Mrs. Elizabeth Pardee of Chicago plan to be married eight feet under water in Puget Sound. They will wear divers' suits and converse by telephone with the minister. The captain, who thinks the ceremony will be a fitting chapter in an adventurous life, and Mrs. Pardee are shown examining some of the equipment they'll wear. (Associated Press Photo)

Flower Bombs to Drop at Jubilee

Santa Ana's birthday party is going to be "bombed." A squadron of airplanes will fly over the municipal bowl June 3, when thousands of citizens are gathered, and will drop 25 to 30 floral "bombs" which will explode into showers of colored blossoms. Rodney Bacon, of the all-service clubs committee working on the committee to celebrate the city's fiftieth anniversary of incorporation, announced plans today for the floral air demonstration. He said Eddie Martin, Floyd Martin, Floyd Wright and other pilots will send their planes over the bowl, loaded with sacks of flowers. These will be dropped on the crowds, deluging them with blossoms.

The flowers, said Mr. Bacon, will be supplied by women of the Eboli club, of which Mrs. Fred Rowland is president.

After the air spectacle, the pilots will fly back to the Martin airport. From there they will motor to the bowl, where they will join the birthday party.

The affair is being arranged by a committee of which Mayor Fred Rowland is honorary chairman. Dr. Melbourne Mabee, president of the Kiwanis club, launched the project when he called together service club representatives and started formation of the general committee.

The event will be a giant barbecue and lawn party celebrating 50 years of progress in Santa Ana. Two thousand free tickets to the affair will be provided.

Five Ex-Policemen Guilty in Kidnaping

BARTOW, Fla., May 23. (AP)—Five former Tampa policemen were convicted today on a charge of kidnaping Eugene F. Poulton, one of three victims who were flogged, tarred and feathered, by a mob in Tampa, Nov. 30.

The jury returned its verdict after more than three hours' deliberation of Judge Robert Dewell's charge that the defendants should be acquitted unless the jurors believed without doubt that Poulton was abducted for the purpose of being secretly imprisoned.

The five convicted men are John Bridges, C. W. Carlisle, F. W. Switzer, C. A. Brown Jr., and Sam Crosby.

HEIMWEHRS BLOCK NAZIS

LINZ, Austria. — Soldiers of Prince Ernst von Starhemberg's private heimwehr (home guard) repulsed an attack on the deposed vice chancellor's Waxenburg estate early today, killed two men and arrested seven Nazis.

DUCE'S ENEMIES FREED

ROME. — Two Italian generals, Luigi Capello and Tito Zanussi, exiled more than 10 years ago for allegedly conspiring to kill Premier Mussolini, were reported among the hundreds of political prisoners granted an amnesty today.

NRA ENEMIES BROKE

NEW YORK. — The Post said today the four Schecter brothers, central figures in the court fight which ended with the NRA declared unconstitutional, are flat broke. Next week is the first anniversary of their victory.

SHAKEUP MAY FIND HOARE IN CABINET

Major Re-Adjustment of English Ministry Seen; Baldwin May Quit

LONDON, May 23. (AP)—The resignation of Colonel Secretary J. H. Thomas in Britain's budget leakage scandal—the third desertion from Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's original cabinet—raised a probability today of a major shakeup in the ministry.

The prime minister went to his country residence, Chequers, for the week-end, there to deliberate long-expected changes.

Hoare May Return
Political sources predicted a cabinet turn-over which would carry back into office Sir Samuel Hoare, former foreign secretary who was the first of this ministry to withdraw under fire.

In addition to filling Thomas' place at the colonial office, Baldwin faced a possibility of having to find a successor for Viscount Monsell, first lord of the admiralty, who was reported anxious to retire at Whitsuntide, which falls next week.

Sir Samuel Hoare, original scapegoat of the Italo-Ethiopian crisis now being hailed as a "far-seeing prophet" for his peace plan to give Italy only part of Ethiopia, might return to the cabinet as secretary for the dominions, informed sources said.

Malcolm MacDonald, under this rearrangement, would switch back to his old post at the colonial office.

Baldwin to Quit?
Other political sources said Sir Samuel might go to the admiralty, with William Ormsby-Gore, first commissioner of works, becoming his majesty's secretary for the colonies.

Baldwin, with the "national union" character of his cabinet broken further by the downfall of the former Laborite Thomas, was expected to seek to strengthen the largely conservative ministry at any rate to hold it together until King Edward's coronation next year, when many believe the prime minister himself will retire.

Thomas' first duty, now that his resignation has been announced, would be to visit Buckingham palace early next week and hand his seals of office to the son of his late friend and sovereign King George.

King Edward's acceptance of the resignation, together with that of Baldwin, was announced last night.

Jail Editor for Threats at Blum

PARIS, May 23. (AP)—Charles Murras, Royalist editor, was sentenced to eight months in prison today on a charge of threatening Leon Blum, Socialist leader and prospective premier of France, with death.

Murras wrote on May 15 that Blum should be "felled when his policy leads to war." On the day before, Murras wrote: "If necessary, he will be the first one struck down."

Dutch Catholics Fight Nazi Move

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands, May 23. (AP)—In an effort to halt the Nazi movement in this country, the heads of the Roman Catholic church will notify church members tomorrow the Catholics who support the movement will be banned from the sacrament.

$25,000 Going Up in Smoke At Westminster on Monday

They'll be building a $25,000 bonfire in Westminster Monday night.

Celebrating the payment of a 20-year debt, virtually every resident of the district will gather in the Westminster park for a giant barbecue and bonfire, the occasion marking the retirement of a $25,000 drainage bond issue voted in 1916.

Fuel for the flames will be the bonds. They will be fed to the blazes by Secretary Willis H. Warner of the district.

Members of the board of the 1914-1916 chamber of commerce, which was instrumental in securing passage of the bonds, will be guests at the affair. They include W. D. Johnston, C. C. Murdy, Willis H. Warner, O. J. Day and R. E. Larter.

NEWPORT IS 'TAKEN' BY PIRATES

Novel Event Signals Opening of Harbor Celebration

"I'm in the midst of the most beautiful bevy of pirates that ever swarmed over the side of the Lottie Carson in Newport bay and captured Newport harbor. The event was the highlight of the initial ceremonies celebrating the completion of the harbor improvement project.

As the beautiful girls swarmed about the governor, his words were carried over the air by a national broadcast. The girls that didn't imprison the state executive captivated some of his chief lieutenants, including Director of Public Works Earl Lee Kelley, Assistant Director Justus Craemer and others.

F. D. R. Gives Signal
The city and port were bedecked with flags and thousands of people filled the city for the gala celebration.

More than 100 yachts and power boats waited at the harbor entrance until 1 p. m. when President Roosevelt at Hyde Park, N. Y., touched a button which blew a whistle signalling the craft to enter the harbor.

One of the colorful features of the morning was a national broadcast of an enactment of the discovery of the port. Balboa, Caballo, King Neptune and other explorers and mythical characters participated in the event.

The Lottie Carson, "made up" as a pirate ship, was called the San Francisco. (Please Turn to Page 2, Col. 6)

Death for Tyrant Of Wrangel Isle

MOSCOW, May 23. (AP)—The "tyrant of Wrangle Island," K. B. Semenchuk, was sentenced to die tonight for perpetrating a reign of death and terror at the far north polar station.

Semenchuk was accused of causing four mysterious deaths while he was administrator at the Wrangle Island station. His co-defendants, S. P. Startseff, also was sentenced to death.

White Cockade Trims Brevity

NEW YORK, May 23. (AP)—Ogden Phipps' White Cockade, an outsider in the betting, today defeated J. E. Widener's Brevity by two lengths in the sixty-first running of the Withers mile at Belmont park. The wealthy stable's Teufel, stablemate of the winner, was third in the field of 10 3-year-olds.

Japan Puts Curb On American Cars

TOKYO, May 23. (AP)—The automotive industry control act, which is expected to restrict drastically the business of Ford and General Motors in Japan, became a law today.

The law is intended, through restrictions on foreign automobiles, to promote greater Japanese manufacture of motor vehicles.

'Pauper' Leaves $60,000 Estate

PATERSON, N. J., May 23. (AP)—John Phillips, 70, and homeless, who had been arrested for vagrancy three times in two weeks, died today in a poorhouse, leaving an estate valued at $60,000.

A sister, Mrs. Mary E. McCormick, apparently is sole heir.

Bank books found on Phillips at the time of his arrest showed cash balances of $11,547. Securities and other valuables found in safe deposit boxes through Mrs. McCormick brought the total of Phillips' wealth to $60,000.

Boy Jailed in Extortion Plot

ALBANY, Ore., May 23. (AP)—Lurid detective stories which fired the imagination of Willie Cole, 17-year-old Albany high school student, lost their appeal today as he sat in jail, charged with attempting to extort $20,000 from a widow.

Police Officer J. E. Lillard said Cole confessed he threatened to kill Mrs. H. Cockler's son, Arthur, 20, unless she left $20,000 in $1000 bills in a vacant lot for him.

Butterfly Becomes 'Lamb,' Follows Boy to School

CRANSTON, R. I., May 23. (AP)—Like the lamb that followed Mary to school, a butterfly has been fluttering after 9-year-old Robert Phillips for the last several days.

Robert caught the winged insect last Tuesday and since then it has followed him to school, fluttering about his face, lighting on his head and arms.

It even has "posed" with Robert for photographs in a classroom.

TOWNSEND ON JAUNT TODAY

Goes For Ride While Probers Ponder On What to Do

BALTIMORE, May 23. (AP)—Dr. Francis E. Townsend today went on a sightseeing tour of historic points in Maryland, apparently unconcerned as to what a congressional investigating committee may do about him.

The California physician, who "took a walk" on the committee during a hearing in Washington Thursday, did not disclose his itinerary, but said he expected to be gone all day.

Scores Tell Support
Meanwhile, at his old age pension plan headquarters here, hundreds of telegrams voicing support and confidence of his followers awaited his return. Most of the messages urged him to stand fast in refusing to submit to further questioning by the committee.

One wire from Rutland, Vt., was signed by F. F. Berry, state area manager. Berry said he told an audience of 1000 persons the congressional group might try to jail Dr. Townsend.

"When I said: 'Is there a man or woman present willing to go to jail with Dr. Townsend?' the entire audience leaped to its feet," the wire said.

One of Townsend's aides went to Washington today to check out of the leader's hotel room there and bring his clothes and papers to Baltimore.

Faces Possible Citation
Townsend is faced with a possible contempt citation or with court action.

While committee members pondered in Washington, Sheridan Downey, jr., Townsend's attorney, told reporters that so far as the Townsend organization was concerned "the congressional investigation is over."

Chairman Bell (D., Mo.) said the committee would not meet until Tuesday, when it would make a definite decision.

Scientists Clamor For Opportunity To Study Relics

By ROCH BRADSHAW

Prominent scientists throughout the state today were clamoring for a chance to solve the mystery surrounding discovery in Orange county of prehistoric bones 400,000 years old. The find is regarded as one of the most important in modern times. The discovery last week of a large, prehistoric horse 400,000 years old has brought to light what may prove to be the most ancient example of such life ever uncovered. Scientists throughout Southern California, as well as the University of California at Berkeley, are besieging the discoverers for a chance to examine these and other bones uncovered by construction of a cut on the Imperial highway between La Mirada avenue and Lutz-wiler avenue, on the county line.

PLAN SUGAR EXCISE TAX

Senate Finance Group About Finished With New Revenue Bill

WASHINGTON, May 23. (AP)—A revised estimate of the yield of the senate finance committee's compromise tax plan today placed the total at $560,000,000 or $600,000,000 short of the additional permanent revenue sought by President Roosevelt.

Chairman Harrison (D., Miss.), in giving this figure, said the committee, moreover, seems to be of the opinion that an excise tax should be placed on sugar, to enforce the Jones-Costigan sugar act, and that it would bring in an estimated $66,000,000.

Expected Yield Told
Harrison detailed the estimated yield of the corporate tax plan this way:

From an 18 per cent tax on corporation income, $215,000,000.
From a 7 per cent levy on undistributed corporate income, $217,000,000.

From application of the normal 4 per cent income tax to corporate dividends, $90,000,000.

From eliminating "cushions" provided in the bill as it passed the house, for debt-ridden and other corporations, $5,000,000.

From placing profits from liquidations under the capital gains provisions of existing law, $33,000,000.

"Our work is about done," the chairman said.

Still remaining to be disposed of Monday, he said, are the questions of the sugar tax and an excise tax on vegetable oil imports and on foreign starches.

Loan of 50 Cents Repaid 2600 to 1

WASHINGTON, May 23. (AP)—A 50-cent loan five years ago has repaid Policeman William True-dale 2600 to 1.

True-dale loaned Charles Vernon, a New York inventor, a half dollar in 1931. A lawyer phoned from New York to say that Vernon had died, leaving the policeman $1300.

State to Honor Will Next Week

LOS ANGELES, May 23. (AP)—Will Rogers week, from May 22 to 28, was proclaimed by Gov. Frank F. Merriam, who urged public gatherings to honor the humorist, killed last year in an Alaskan air crash with Wiley Post.

BEHEAD 'UNCLE TICK TOCK'

German Murdered 12 Boys

SCHWERIN, Germany, May 23. (AP)—An old hobo watch repairer, hailed by children in southern Germany as "Uncle Tick Tock," paid with his life on the chopping block today for the murder of 12 boys.

The wandering jeweler, named in court records as Adolph Seefeld, 65, confessed the killings before his decapitation and showed how he administered poison to the children. In addition to the crimes for which he received 12 sentences of death and an order for emascution, Seefeld admitted he killed "numerous others."

Before pronouncing the death sentences, the presiding judge declared he was convinced the itinerant watch repairer had murdered at least 30 children and caused the moral degeneration of at least 100 more.

Condemning Seefeld to die on the block, the judge said the Nazi system "would not permit monsters like Seefeld to be repeatedly let loose on humanity" from jail to continue their criminal careers.

ALMA WHITAKER CHARGES COUNTY BLOCKING BEACH BUILDING

'LAW FORBIDS NEW HOUSES' SHE SAYS

Famed Writer Sends Letter of Protest to Supervisors

Alma Whitaker, famous Los Angeles journalist, today contended that denial of her request for permission to build a second house on her Sunset Beach lot means all future building at the coast resort is forbidden.

The noted writer has been denied a building permit by the county planning commission, which has explained that there is not enough room on her property for another house, under terms of the ordinance.

In a letter to District Attorney W. F. Menton, Miss Whitaker said:

"The ordinance evidently forbids all future building in Sunset Beach, since there is no lot in the whole area which reaches the dimensions required."

Charges Exception
She also repeated her claim that an exception has been made in the case of Mr. Bailey, "who is building clear to the property line on an already crowded lot at Sixteenth and Pacific (identical with my own)—and by no means such an attractive structure as I am contemplating."

Mr. Menton said today he plans to investigate the contention in regard to Mr. Bailey. Dr. W. L. Bigham of Anaheim, chairman of the county planning commission, said he has no recollection of the Bailey matter coming before the commission.

"We never have made an exception which violates the state housing law," said Dr. Bigham, "and this law does not allow building on property lines. We are willing at all times to talk things over. We're not trying to high-hat anyone. But if we made an exception in this case we might as well throw the planning ordinance in the creek."

Miss Whitaker said original plans for her lot called for two pretty modern houses with a patio between. One has been built, to form half the completed structure.

"As it stands, therefore, it is a sadly one-sided affair, incomplete, ruining the architect's rather charming idea for it."

"I am told I may add to the present structure. The whole argument, therefore, resolves itself into forbidding me to place an attractive patio, for beautification, in the center of the lot. If I tack the new wing onto the existing one, thus spoiling the whole design and forming an ungainly and lopsided effect. I am within the law! And this while the whole idea of the planning commission is to 'improve' building plans."

Miss Whitaker replied to Ray Goodell, chairman of the promotion and publicity committee of the chamber of commerce, who wrote her regarding her trouble, and said that while she is in favor of planning commissions, she feels it is advisable to fit rulings to individual districts.

"Sweeping rules can be so unfair," she said. "I was the first to build after the quake, when I really couldn't afford it. It was a gesture of

France Slaps Ban On Hitler Play

PARIS, May 23. (AP)—The ministries of interior and education today banned the play, "Hitler," which was shown privately last night in a suburban theater. The play is a dramatic interpretation in nine scenes of the German leader's life, as seen through the eyes of the author, Paul Caillet.

F.D.R. AT BED OF HIS ILL MOTHER

HYDE PARK, N. Y., May 23. (AP)—President Roosevelt arrived at his family home here today and found his 81-year-old mother, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, resting comfortably following a hip injury sustained in a fall in New York City 10 days ago.

A small group of townsfolk greeted the executive as he left his special train. A little red-haired boy presented him with a Buddy Poppy and he was off to the family estate.

The President went straight to his mother's bedside, before breakfast, and found her in a cheery mood.

The President had no engagements for the day except to witness the opening of a new road on the estate in the afternoon and press a button to start a celebration in connection with the opening of a new harbor at Balboa, Calif.

Work to Replace Mexico Gambling

TIJUANA, Mex., May 23. (AP)—Promise of huge public works by the Mexican federal government quieted agitation today in this border town, hard hit by unemployment since gambling was banned last year.

Answering the demands of labor leaders for the reopening of the gay Agua Caliente resort and the resignation of Governor Gabriel Gavira of Lower California, Gen. Francisco Mujica, secretary of communications and public works, told a mass meeting of 2000 persons:

"Your present conditions should be only temporary as the government is developing a plan to open mines throughout Lower California. It also has under consideration a plan for huge agricultural developments for you."

Belgium Election Fight Fatal to 2

ANTWERP, Belgium, May 23. (AP)—Two persons were killed today in a pre-election fight between Realists (young Fascists) and Socialists. The parliamentary election will be tomorrow.

TUSTIN RANCHER PASSES AWAY

William B. Risk, rancher and Tustin resident for the past 21 years, died this morning in Artesia, after a lengthy illness. The 74-year-old man came to California from Ireland 64 years ago.

His widow, Mrs. Florence Manzy Risk, lives in Tustin. Three sisters also survive, Mrs. W. W. Morrison and Miss Martha Risk, Petaluma, and Mrs. T. D. Moiles, Alameda. Funeral services will be conducted at Smith and Tutill chapel at 3:30 p. m. Monday. Burial will take place in Fairhaven cemetery.

IN HOSPITAL

Willis Kirkpatrick, of the Broadway theater staff, was operated on for appendicitis yesterday at St. Joseph's hospital by Dr. John Ball.

SEEK YOUTHS FOR TORCH SLAYING

KEENE, N. H., May 23. (AP)—Meager clues were sifted today by authorities in an effort to identify the mountain top torch murder victim, believed by authorities to have been a middle-aged mother.

At the same time, authorities searched for two youths, who, George H. Blake, of Chesterfield, said he met in the woods Wednesday night while searching for a fire he had seen.

Blake, a pressman on a Keene newspaper, said the youths appeared nervous when he spoke to them and were in a hurry.

Search of Wastisquet mountain where foresters yesterday stumbled upon the charred body, disclosed a cheap vanity case, a 22-caliber pistol with nine discharged shells, and an empty gasoline can.

Dr. Osmond H. Hubbard, New Hampshire state pathologist, who performed an autopsy, said the woman apparently had been beaten into unconsciousness, her clothing saturated with gasoline and set afire.

It was possible she also had been strangled and shot, he added.

County Solicitor Arthur Olson said the best of the clues found so far was the nickel-plated vanity case, on the face of which were inscribed the initials, "H. A. H."

FLETCHER RAPS 'TERMITES'

NEW YORK, May 23. (AP)—Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the Republican national committee, told the Young Republicans today that "a band of termites is working at the foundations of our institutions while you sleep."

In a speech broadcast from the National Republican club, Fletcher asserted his party was better organized, "more militant and enthusiastic" than at any other convention period in its history.

"The Republican party only asks the youth of the country to remain true to their ideals," he said. "What finer task can you have than this of preserving our institutions and our present form of government against the insidious attacks of men who have lost their faith in America and their political henchmen who are corrupting the voters with public money."

Limping Thief Takes Tomato Plants

Members of the farm theft detail of the sheriff's office today were searching for a man who limps and wears a size 6½ shoe. This meager description of the wanted man was found when Deputies Walter Dungan and Ezra Stanley were called to investigate the theft of 2000 tomato plants from the John Viera ranch, route 1, Anaheim, late yesterday.

According to a report filed by two deputies, the thief pulled the tomato plants out of a hot bed in front of the Viera home. Footprints led them to believe the man was a cripple. The stolen plants were valued at $10.

MORE ABOUT OLD BONES

log of Yorba Linda, president of the Imperial Highway association, who last night attended a meeting of the organization at Corona, at which the bones were displayed by Superintendent Reynolds of the R. E. Campbell Construction company. This concern is building the 2.6-mile stretch of Imperial highway between La Mirada and Lutz-willer avenues.

Glacial Deposit
Today Mr. Reynolds explained that there is evidence of a glacial deposit going diagonally across the highway. A cut 38 to 40 feet deep was made at this point, revealing the ancient bones. Only a portion of them have been removed, and Mr. Reynolds said Dr. Stock of the California Institute of Technology hopes to make further excavations to exhaust the rich find of prehistoric material.

All the skeletons of the four animals so far discovered have not been taken out.

One of the finds was a huge tooth of the mastodon. Mr. Reynolds said it weighs two pounds, is two and one-half inches wide, three and one-half inches long and has a root three or four inches long.

Experts Fix Age
The bones already have been examined by Curator Wild at the Exposition Park museum in Los Angeles, and Dr. Stock and Dr. Hall of Caltech, who placed the age of the bones, Mr. Reynolds said.

Dr. Miller of U. C. L. A., scientists at the University of California at Berkeley, at the University of Redlands and other institutions are eagerly seeking a chance to examine the bones, said Mr. Reynolds. They probably will be shipped to Berkeley next. Later they are expected to be housed permanently in some Southland museum.

Discovery of the bones of the large prehistoric horse marked the first time such a find has been made in this region.

BEAUREGARD WILL FOUND IN NORTH

SANTA BARBARA, May 23. (AP)—The last will of Gen. G. P. T. Beauregard, famed Confederate leader of the Civil war, has been found here, County Recorder Yris Covarrubias said today.

Government relief workers combing old records discovered the document.

General Beauregard died in New Orleans in 1893 and no explanation has been found as to why his will should have been recorded here.

Historians said the will is of considerable research value.

The search of records throughout the nation is being made as a means of gathering hitherto undisclosed historical material.

General Beauregard ordered the firing on Fort Sumpter which started the Civil war, and played a heroic role in the battle of Bull Run.

Oust Arab Leader From Palestine

JERUSALEM, May 23. (AP)—The Palestine government, seeking to curb inflammatory racial propaganda, today ordered the exile of Kakhri Bey Nashashibi, leader of the Arab defense party.

Nashashibi has been expelled from permanent residence in Jerusalem on charges of inciting Jaffa boatmen to continue the general strike against Jewish immigration.

MORE ABOUT BLACK LEGION

ly of floggings and other sinister activities, and said that "To belong to the legion, you have to have been a member of the Ku Klux Klan."

That information came from Urban Lipps, 32, automotive factory worker. He is one of four men said by Police Inspector Navarre to have confessed that they took Poole to a country roadside and shot him.

Mrs. Poole, mother of a 14-day-old baby, denied that her husband had mistreated her.

Lipps said he joined the Black Legion six months ago.

"I had to knell down," he said, "and then a man held a gun at my heart and made me swear something. I can't remember what it was. I couldn't think of anything but that loaded gun."

"The Black Legion is something like the Ku Klux Klan, only it is a higher organization. To belong to the legion you have to have been a member of the Ku Klux Klan. The dues are 10 cents a month."

The head of the organization is called major general and the other officers have military titles, down to corporal. I was just a private. The officers wear black robes with the skull and crossbones on them."

"The first ride I took part in was the night Poole was killed. I never took part in any floggings, but I heard of several."

McCrea said he would ask murder warrants for Lipps, Harvey Davis, 38, a "colonel" in the society; Dayton Dean, 36; Irvin Lee, 30; George C. Johnson, 72; Paul R. Edwards, 31, and Edgar Baldwin, 25. He said Lipps, Davis, Dean and Lee had admitted they were present at the slaying of Poole, and that Dean and Lee confessed firing shots.

MORE ABOUT NEWPORT

Salvador for today's event. After the port was "captured" by the pirate beauties, several officials made short talks. Director Kelley announced that next week he will have the pleasure of opening bids on construction of a four-lane highway between Seal Beach and Newport Beach. The road is now a three-lane thoroughfare.

The coast community was deluged today with newspapermen, camera men and radio men, all of whom were telling the world of the colorful spectacle being enacted.

Coast Guard Present
A flotilla of coast guard ships was in the port, while the Good-year blimp hovered overhead.

The girl pirates all were winners of beauty contests in their home cities. Some of those who participated in the attack on the Lottie Carson were Eleanor Cogan of Irvine, representing Santa Ana; Phyllis Bertino, Venice, representing a mermaid; Virginia Bunton, Hermosa Beach; Barbara Nichols, Pasadena; Sue Rush, Riverside; Angela Thicker, Pomona; Maxine Compton, Long Beach, and Barbara Bush, Hollywood.

Among the other public officials and noted men present were Commodore Albert Solland, Commodore William H. Rohl, Supervisor Willard Smith of Orange, Mayor Harry Williamson, Newport Beach; A. B. Roussele, prominent harbor booster, and George Rogers of Los Angeles, whose efforts were instrumental in bringing about federal financial assistance for the port improvement.

They'll Just Have To Quit Fiddling, That's All!

CHICAGO, May 23. (AP)—One way or another, Alton Nolo, 83, may have to quit fiddling around his home. He and his wife face eviction. To avert it, they might have to part with a violin that has been in the family for several generations. Max Singer, attorney who came to their aid, had the instrument examined by experts. They reported it was a Stradivarius, worth possibly $25,000.

Woman's Robbery Story Just Myth

Madeline Shay, 32-year-old Long Beach woman, was found wandering near the Orange County hospital last night, apparently in a daze and unable to explain her presence. Her clothes were covered with mud, and her matted hair was filled with dirt.

Mrs. Shay told hospital attaches she had been thrown from a car and that $57 in cash and $910 in postal bonds which she had with her were missing.

Today Deputy Sheriff James Ragan questioned Mrs. Shay and learned she had gone for a ride yesterday afternoon with a Long Beach man. They had a few drinks, she said, and later, a second man joined the party. She remembered little about events that followed and was unable to tell the officer where the party had gone.

This morning, a nurse in examining Mrs. Shay's clothes, found the $57 in cash and $490 worth of the postal bonds. Mrs. Shay, when further questioned by the officer, remembered that she had left the remaining $410 worth of bonds at her home. Her husband

MAN MISSING AFTER CASH IS BANKED

LOS ANGELES, May 23. (AP)—A mysterious middle-aged man, who deposited more than $30,000 in Los Angeles banks and then disappeared, was sought by federal and private operatives today on the possibility he may have met with foul play.

The Burns Detective Agency gave this history of the case: A light, unobtrusive man, about 50, registered last Sunday night at the Rosslyn hotel, giving the name of Donald Berg, and his home city as St. Louis, Mo.

On Monday and Tuesday, downtown banks reported receiving savings accounts from Berg in rapid-fire fashion. Tellers said he usually appeared with two suitcases, from which he produced a $1000 bill and two $100 bills. Twenty-five accounts were opened. The man gave bank references in San Francisco and New York, which, when checked, failed to furnish any information about him, the tellers said.

Wednesday night he was seen leaving the Rosslyn lobby, still carrying the two suitcases. That is the last report of him.

was notified, and Mrs. Shay was released from the hospital at 9 a. m. today. She had not suffered any injuries.

Story of the Bible Told in Pictures

REBEKAH AT THE WELL—"Abraham was old, and well stricken in age; and the Lord had blessed Abraham in all things." Abraham called his eldest servant and made him swear that he would not take a wife for Abraham's son, Isaac, from the daughters of the Canaanites. Abraham sent the servant into Mesopotamia, unto the city of Nahor. "And he made his camels to kneel down without the city by a well of water. And he said, O Lord God, I stand here by the well of water; and the daughters of the men of thy place come out to draw water: And let it come to pass, that the damsel to whom I shall say, Let down thy pitcher, I pray thee, that I may drink, and she shall say, Drink, and I will give thy camels drink also; let the same be she that thou hast appointed for thy servant Isaac. And he came to pass that, behold, Rebekah came out, who was born to Bethuel, son of Milcah, the wife of Nahor, Abraham's brother, with her pitcher upon her shoulder."—Gen. 24:1-11.5. And the sign was fulfilled as the servant had prayed it would occur. The story of Rebekah is the first romance in the Bible. From an engraving made by Merian in the Seventeenth century.

Rambling County Editor

By T. N. (BRICK) GAINES

PERHAPS a lot of folks, like us, have wondered what's going on along Placentia avenue between the county hospital and the east entrance of Anaheim, where men work the whole night through on queer looking trucks, digging holes in the ground.

We found out. They're more than digging holes they're looking for oil. This is the latest method, to determine if oil-bearing sand lies along the road anywhere.

Here's what they do—first they dig that hole several hundred feet into the ground. Then they put a dynamite charge at the bottom, and go away from there. Some distance away they have recording instruments which measure the time noise from the explosion takes to reach the instrument. It's very important, that time for the noise to come back to the operators. If there's oil, they get some sort of a different reading. If there isn't oil, they get mad.

The men are prospecting the entire area lying along Placentia avenue, with their cute little machines, which operate almost exactly like the huge machinery used for rotary drilling operations, except trucks furnish the motive power.

The operators won't say whether they're having any success or not, but we hope there's oil in them thar flats!

See where my friend, Frank Rospaw, is enlarging. In fact, he seems to be enlarging town in a big way. Seal Beach Post and Wave, in fact.

Frank started out merely as publisher of the Placentia Courier. Then he went and got elected president of the California Newspaper Publishers' association, which is a big-time job.

He must have liked lots of work, however, because now he takes on another publication.

Seems to me there's a big opportunity at Seal Beach right now, with all the developing going on under experienced hands. They're going to build a real beach community before they get through. If you remember, they're even offering free paint for all houses that need it.

Hope Frank's new office needs paint!

After all the joke's really on the poor subscribers.

Here I am, sick. Nothing much to feed presses. Just as the horizon was starting to look darkish, a queer noise came from the corner of the room. I looked around, and at first didn't see anything. Then, to the delight of five beautifully-trained nurses, I started saying foolish things. Like—"It's Samuel the Seal," seemed to be the theme of the conversation.

As I remember, the seven beautiful nurses giggled and giggled. They lined up, like chorus girls, and chanted, in unison, "He's nuts!"

Again came the funny noise from the corner. This time I was morally certain that it was good old Samuel, czar of Laguna's seal colony.

Even the nine nurses weren't so confident now. In fact, when they saw it really was Sam, they screamed, plenty.

And then, sure enough, Ole Samuel came waddling out of the corner.

"Heard you was sick," he said ungrammatically, "and so I thought I'd come up and seal if you were O. K."

I informed him, wearily, that everything was lovely until he came, pointing out the eleven nurses he'd scared out of the room. Furthermore, I intimated, I wasn't in a seal-seeing mood.

He took that cheerfully enough. "I knew you were feeling like a sardine in a school of barracuda," he remarked, "so I thought I'd cheer you up a little. Say, speaking of sardines, you wouldn't have a little cast-off catfish around, would you?" he asked casually.

At my surly refusal he took a hunk of halibut from his sealskin coat and started munching it reflectively.

Finally he said, "I don't want to be selfish about this, and you can have some, too, if you'd like it slightly uncooked."

But, when I'd turned him down again, he went into his song and dance, explaining that he'd like to have something done about the fishermen shooting so many of his relatives. Not only makes Chief Abe Johnson at Laguna angry when he has to clean up the carcasses, but it's also hard on the seals, he mumbled through a mouthful of mackerel.

"What do the fishermen shoot 'em for?" I asked him.

And he answered that it was only because each seal eats a few fish every day. Not more than a few hundred pounds each, he added innocently.

I refused to give him any sympathy because of his disappearing tribe, and he immediately became exasperated and started getting ready to leave.

"Anyway," he concluded, "I'll see you at Newport tomorrow." And he went away mumbled something about doing a good deed and then not getting any appreciation for it, and all the time I couldn't get out of bed to drive him away!

THOUSANDS AT NEWPORT HARBOR'S BIRTHDAY PARTY

BAY PARADE HEADLINES PAGEANT

Roosevelt Signals Start of Holiday Program; Throngs Merry

It was anchors aweigh at Newport-Balboa today! With the city thronged by thousands of guests from throughout the Southland, Orange county harbor's first official birthday was held, marked by a colorful water parade, fireworks, pageantry and fiesta.

More than 500 guests jammed into the Newport Harbor Yacht club this afternoon, where Gov. Frank Merriam figuratively cut the harbor's birthday cake.

Even President Franklin D. Roosevelt had a part in Orange county's celebration as he touched a button in Washington, D. C., to send the colorful Corinthian parade into the new federal harbor.

Tonight the merrymaking is slated to reach its height with a grand ball, dazzling pyrotechnics from the bay, a street carnival in Newport, and a general spirit of fun in Balboa.

Tomorrow yachts of all sizes compete in races for dinghies, stars, snowbirds, six-meters and other classics. During the afternoon a kayak carnival is to be held at Corona Del Mar. Bands will play throughout the day.

Events were watched over by army planes from March Field, and the stub-nosed Goodyear blimp from Los Angeles. Giant searchlights are stationed to make the night festive with lights.

This afternoon the entire nation will join briefly in the birthday party, as the pageant play, "The Re-Discovery of Balboa," is broadcast over a nation-wide hook-up.

SENIOR CLASS GIVES PLAY

ORANGE.—An event which marks the approach of graduation was the senior class play of Orange Union High school given last night. The play was directed by Mrs. Stella Jane Brubaker.

Assisting her on the production staff were: Scenery, Ross L. Taylor; stage manager, Delbert Lewis; prompter, Juanita Stanfield; properties, Henrietta Campbell; costumes, Betty Adams. Music was furnished between acts by Percy J. Green and the high school orchestra.

Among those who gave particularly outstanding performances was Maryesther Wood, played by Wesley Marquart. Bob Paul gave a consistent playing of his part. Others who contributed to the success of the play were: Bill Jordan, Dick Harbottle, Norma La Ferney, Barbara Knuth, Bill Fields and Eugene Williamson.

Corona Del Mar Group Entertains

NEWPORT-BALBOA.—Members of the Corona Del Mar Civic Association and numerous visitors at Newport Harbor for the opening attended the dance at the civic center last night. Refreshments were served by a committee.

Women of the association are making plans for a summer bazaar and food sale. Beginning next Wednesday the women will meet at the various homes to play bridge and discuss arrangements for the two events. The first bridge-meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Stewart Diehl at 506 Marguerite street.

Will Arraign Burglary Suspect

LAGUNA BEACH.—Charged with burglary, James Fisher, 30, until recently of Yuma, Ariz., will appear next Tuesday at 1 p. m. before Justice of the Peace C. C. Cravath for arraignment on the charge.

Fisher is alleged to have entered the apartment of J. Edward Eberly, 348 Cliff drive, through a rear window last Wednesday evening, and carried away clothing and other effects to a total value of $350. The accused man, picked up by Long Beach police, is now in the county jail.

Tustin Graduates Are Party Guests

TUSTIN.—Members of the Tustin grammar school eighth grade were entertained last night at the annual graduates' party sponsored by mothers of eighth grade students in the Parent-Teacher association in the school cafeteria.

Approximately 90 graduating students attended, and games were played in the kindergarten room from 7:30 to 10 p. m., after which refreshments were served in the cafeteria. The room was decorated with flowers in pastel shades and crepe paper. Mrs. William Leinberger was chairman of the committee giving the party.

Only 41 cattle in 12 herds were found infected with tick in the Webb county, Tex., eradication program. There were 91,280 cattle dipped.

NEW 'PULPIT' TO BE DEDICATED

Dedication services for the "Wayside Pulpit," a new type of outside bulletin board recently installed at the United Presbyterian church, will be conducted at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow, preceding evening church service.

Dr. Albert Eakin Kelley, Presbyterian pastor, will lead the service. Fully equipped with removable black enameled letters upon a white background, the bulletin board is the gift of one of the church families. Woodwork of the board was made by the Santa Ana Cabinet and Fixture company.

"It is the thought of the donor and of the minister and congregation that the bulletin will present the church's invitation to everyone who passes the busy corner at Sixth and Bush streets," Dr. Kelly said.

HOLIDAY EVENT IS PLANNED

HUNTINGTON BEACH.—First plans for a gigantic Fourth of July celebration are underway and chamber of commerce officials have selected the name of the event as Jubilee Del Mar—meaning party by the sea.

The two-day celebration will begin at 11 a. m. Saturday, July 4, with the most lavish parade ever shown here promised.

Hundreds of riders will participate in the parade and in a rodeo in the afternoon. Southland bathing beauties will be invited to take part in the bathing beauty parade and one of the most outstanding events will be the baby parade, according to Secretary W. H. Gallienne of the chamber of commerce.

President D. E. Burry will name his committees at a meeting Monday evening.

To Hold Brown Rites Next week

LAGUNA BEACH.—Funeral services for Joseph A. Farrell, 75, local musician and business man, 356 Cliff drive, who Wednesday dropped dead at Creede, Colo., will probably not be held until early next week. The services will follow the Masonic ritual.

For a number of years Mr. Brown was a partner of George N. Brown in the ownership of the Laguna Beach Ballroom, valuable beach front property. He was a brother-in-law of William A. Griffith, noted Laguna painter, Farrell and Griffith having married sisters.

KINDERGARTEN FESTIVAL

OCEANVIEW.—Pupils of the kindergarten and primary departments held a May festival on the school grounds this week. Corinne Bove, in the character of Mother Goose, announced the program numbers which included songs, an accordion solo by Clarence Groves, selections by the rhythm band led by Raymond Daiken, and a Maypole dance. Mrs. Mildred Moulton, Miss Beatrice Brockman and the Misses Ruth and Edith Spencer directed the play.

PARTY HELD YESTERDAY

WESTMINSTER.—The seventh and eighth grades held their last assembly before graduation yesterday morning. School songs, with Mr. Bebermeyer leading, were sung by the group, followed by the class play, followed by Leota Hemphill and the class prophecy given by Helen Devers. The program closed with the singing of "Alma Mater."

NEW OFFICERS INSTALLED

ORANGE.—The junior matrons' section of the Orange Women's club met at the club house yesterday for the last meeting of this year. Installation of officers for the coming year was conducted by Mrs. A. Haven Smith, honorary toastmaster for the day. Toastmaster was Mrs. Margaret Clark.

The program consisted of two talks: "International Law and Its Influence on Our Politics," by Mrs. Lucille Bewley, and "International Questions of Today," by Mrs. A. J. Nies. In keeping with the subjects of the speakers, table responses were on current events.

New officers who were installed by Mrs. Smith are: Mrs. Henry Walsworth, president; Mrs. Kenneth King, vice president; Mrs. Robert Swank, secretary-treasurer.

Slate Special Memorial Rites

LAGUNA BEACH.—Annual tribute to the nation's war dead will be paid by Laguna Beach residents at special services to be held next Sunday at 11 a. m. in the Community Presbyterian church. It was announced today by the Rev. Raymond I. Brahm, minister, that the church's invitation to the program has been arranged, will be attended by the American Legion, the Legion auxiliary, the Women's Relief Corps, and the Boy and the Girl Scouts.

At the evening service of the same day, the minister will speak on "Must We Fight," an address dealing with the present situation in the world as it applies to peace and war. After the address, the audience will be given an opportunity of asking questions from the floor, and to participate in a discussion on the subject, it was announced.

Enno Schmooch Is Honored at College

Maintaining the standard of high scholarship and popularity set by his elder brother, Enno Schmooch, son of the Rev. and Mrs. William Schmooch, 1816 Brown street, was recently elected student body president of the California Concordia college, in Oakland.

The young man, who will be a senior student at the college next year, is to return in June to spend the summer vacation with his parents here. He will also visit his brother, now pastor of a Glendale church, who was student body president of the Concordia college six years ago.

Arrange Anaheim Outdoor Services

ANAHEIM.—Arrangements were completed this week assuring Anaheim of continuance of Sunday evening outdoor church services as in the past. The Anaheim Ministerial association announced that it is drawing up the schedule for the city park services.

They will start each Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock, beginning on July 5 and running through Sept. 6, allowing one week for each of the city's nine churches to take charge, and one night for a Y. M. C. A. program. Each city pastor will preach at one service.

MEMORIAL SERVICES

Special memorial services will be held at the Villa Park Community church tomorrow, the Rev. Thomas A. Flynn, pastor, announced. "Memories of Our Fallen Heroes" will be the Rev. Flynn's topic at the 11 o'clock services. Bible school classes will be held at 9:45 a. m.

THREE RESIGN JAYSEE JOBS

FULLERTON.—Three vacancies on the Fullerton Union High school and district junior college faculties will be filled by new faces when school reconvenes for the 1936-1937 year, it was announced today.

Edwin A. Swanson has been employed as instructor in business English, and D. Ellsworth Charlson in English. A third instructor will be named.

Three resignations have been accepted from members of the present staff. These are Miss Ellasue Lemmon, in the commerce department; Miss Druzila R. Mackey, Americanization director, and John Arrambide in the physical education department. Miss Bertha Moore, home economics, and Mrs. Claire Carter, mathematics, have been granted leaves of absence for the year.

In all other instances the faculty staff will remain the same.

Set Wintersburg Church Service

WINTERSBURG.—The Rev. J. H. Thompson will speak at both the morning and evening services of the Methodist church Sunday. The subject of the morning discourse will be, "How Christians May Be Empowered." At the evening service Mr. Thompson will have for his topic, "The World Revolution, or the World Regained." Special anthems will be given by the choir at both services.

The Woman's Missionary society held a tea this week at the home of Mrs. Edith Gary. At a recent meeting of the society officers were named for the coming year. Mrs. Edith Gary was re-elected president; serving with her will be Mrs. Alton Hall, vice president; Mrs. E. Ray Moore, secretary; Mrs. Raymond Beem, corresponding secretary; Mrs. John Murdy, treasurer.

The vacation Bible school will open on June 8 with Mrs. J. F. Tucker, superintendent, assisted by Mrs. Raymond Beem and Mrs. W. F. Slater.

Tustin Pupils in Piano Recital

TUSTIN.—Twenty-six Tustin High school students participated in the annual piano recital presented yesterday afternoon under the direction of Miss Mary McVey, music instructor, in the school auditorium.

Those participating in the recital other than Miss McVey and Miss Madge Stephens, glee club director, were Marguerite Smith, Thelma Hansen, Lorraine Eckles, Bill Robertson, Robert Schostag, Philip Rummels, Chester Stearns, Myrnie Adams, Marguerite Straw, Helen Betty Ritner, Elmer Doyle, Donn Hart, Norman Rusher, Bob Marshall, Robert Newcomb, Mary Pafford, Gwendolyn McCarter, Virginia Matthews, Lucille Cowan, Francis McIntire, Grace Bower, Naomi Lehman, Norma Daly, Isabelle Ahern and Vivian Hazen.

Tustin Faculty S. A. Party Guests

TUSTIN.—Faculty members of Tustin High school participated in a desert monopoly party at the home of Mrs. Elsie C. Daly of 1811 Bush street, Santa Ana, Thursday night.

Those in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Means, Miss May Rose Borum, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brisco, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Byrne, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Cole, Miss Helen Greenleaf, Miss Emma B. Heild, Miss Elsie C. Hull, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent C. Humeston, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Korff, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Kyle, Miss Clara Macomber, Miss Mary McVey, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Northrup, Miss Grace Shults, Miss Madge Stephens, Miss Stella Yocum, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Smith, Miss Frances Parks and Clarence Bowman.

Brothers Vie for Student Body Job

TUSTIN.—Two brothers are competing for the presidency of the student body at Tustin High school in the coming election to be held Tuesday when students choose between Sam and Paul Francis for the next year during the first semester of next year.

Bob Marshall was unanimously elected vice president during the nominations, as were Emily Bouchard and Beth Francis for life leaders. Other students to be voted on are Vivian Parham, Norma Daly and Betty Lou Haniford, secretary; Dorothy Wynn and George Osterman, treasurer; Robert Buchheim, Horace Stevens and Bill Nelson, parliamentarian; Shirley Phillips, Dorothy Heil, Eloise Hull and Helen Betty Ritner, song leaders, and Robert Atwood and Edwin Cox, athletic manager.

Perissol, who still preserved his attitude of indifference, shook his head.

"Your questions were perfectly in order," he remarked. "The only point is—I don't know exactly what replies you expected to receive. Charting the coast waters is one of the duties of the navy."

"Fresh at the foam, new bathed in Paphian wells," Hamer Wildburn quoted, as, stooping down, he pulled Lucienne from the water, up the steps and on to his boat, the sea shine glittering upon her bathing suit. "Say, if you had not come this morning, I should have put on my shore clothes and presented myself at the chateau."

"A young man who can quote poetry lying on his stomach," she laughed, "deserves a visit from Aphrodite herself. I am terribly sorry, Hamer, my dear, but we have a houseful, and you know what that means. Thank good-

South Laguna Residents to Start $16,000 Project

LAGUNA BEACH.—Articles of incorporation of the Three Arch Bay association, an organization of property owners in South Laguna, formed for the purpose of taking title to and improving Bonyngue road, a private thoroughfare, have been approved by the secretary of state, according to advices received here by Attorney Joseph Frenette, counsel for the incorporators.

Plans now under consideration call for taking over the Bonyngue road, and a few adjoining rights of way to the beach from the cliff, from the Bonyngue estate, held in trust by the Bank of America. Under a proposed escrow agreement, handled by the Laguna branch of the bank, title to the road will be given to the association as soon as the necessary amount required for improving it, estimated at $16,000, has been raised.

The proposed improvement project calls for a 30-foot pavement from the Dolph property to Gus-Groat point, and curbing work to be let out on contract. City Engineer A. J. Stead, Laguna Beach, is preparing plans and specifications.

OBSERVE 25TH ANNIVERSARY WILL DEDICATE NEW P. O.

ORANGE.—A mock wedding and a reception were held at the American Legion hall last night, observing the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. David Fairbairn. Mr. Fairbairn is the post commander of the American Legion, and Mrs. Fairbairn is president of the Legion auxiliary.

The bridal procession of the mock wedding consisted of Mrs. Charlotte Adams as the bride, and Newman as bridegroom, Edgar Haines the father, Bert Hodson the minister, Louise Ozmond the matron of honor, Eddie Westcott the best man, and Anna Kast, Celia Bryant and Geraldine Hodson as bridesmaids.

The program consisted of two violin solos played by Marilyn Bryant, and a vocal solo by Mrs. Edith Richmond, accompanied by Mrs. Lydick at the piano. After the program, the remainder of the evening was spent dancing and playing cards, during which refreshments were served.

Arrangements for the affair are being made by Anaheim service clubs, and music will be furnished by the Anaheim Union High school band and Edward Backs of Placentia, who will sing. Miss Jane Deming, violinist, and Miss Kath-

"Floating Peril"

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

CHAPTER 14
"I must admit," Merriam acknowledged frankly, "that I never dreamt of such a thing. I thought of every reason for your presence here but that. By the way, you have been so courteous that I shall venture upon one more question—was it my fancy or did you not receive a lady visitor a few minutes ago?"

"I did not receive her, sir," was the prompt denial. "It would have been utterly contrary to regulations."

Did she go so far as to explain the reason of her coming? Merriam persisted gently. "I gathered," the other explained, "that she was staying at the chateau, the owner of which—the Marquis de Montclair—has two sons in the navy, both in our fleet. She wished to offer me the hospitality of her friends, but I had to tell her we could not accept until our work was finished."

Merriam rose to his feet. "I am obliged to you sir," he said, "for answering my questions so frankly. Your boat, I see, is the Fidelite. And your name?"

"Commander Berard. At your service, Monsieur."

"We shall not detain you a moment longer. Is your business likely to take you long?"

"About a week, I should think. I shall telephone each day to the Admiral. He will tell me if the result of my work here is in any way interesting and if it is worth continuing."

"If you stay long enough and have an hour to spare at any time," Merriam invited graciously, "the hospitality of my yacht is at your service. I should be delighted to see you for lunch or dinner any day if you will signal first to be sure that we are on board. We are lying across the bay there."

"I shall venture to pay my respects, sir," the Commander assured his distinguished visitor.

Merriam let his fingers dabble in the water on their swift homeward voyage. He seemed a little thoughtful.

"I am afraid," he reflected, "I must have seemed to be making rather a fool of myself to that young man."

Perissol, who still preserved his attitude of indifference, shook his head.

"Your questions were perfectly in order," he remarked. "The only point is—I don't know exactly what replies you expected to receive. Charting the coast waters is one of the duties of the navy."

BEACH PLAYERS TO PERFORM

LAGUNA BEACH.—Awaited with considerable interest by local theater fans is the forthcoming presentation of "The Pet Asp," a three-act comedy-drama written and produced by Miss Jean Marly, of Laguna Beach, set for June 5, 6 and 7, at the Marly Theater Loft, formerly the Little Art Theater, on Graceland drive. The production is directed by Frank Rasmussen, well known Los Angeles dramatic coach, and among the cast are R. Jacques Welch, Lea Rae, Margo Sangster Goddard, George Ritchie and Roy Bliss.

Laguna Beach Community Players will on June 15 and 16 present to local audiences the sparkling comedy, "Up Pops the Devil," by Albert Hackett and Frances Goodrich. The production will be staged at the playhouse on Ocean avenue. Schuyler Smith, former director of the Comedy club of New York, is in charge of the rehearsals.

Revival Services End
ORANGE.—The current revival program of the Free Methodist church will conclude with Sunday's services, led by Evangelist Rock of Pomona. He will take as his morning topic, "The Pentecost," and as his evening subject, "The Divine Look." Bible school will be at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. There will be a special 7 o'clock song and prayer service.

NEW BUILDING PERMITS

LAGUNA BEACH.—Included among new building permits this week was one to Robert C. Cordell, 355 Custer street, for the construction of a dwelling at an estimated cost of $2650, and one permitted to J. L. Riggs, 109 Oak street, for construction of a garage at a cost of $500.

Return of Bill (Willie Mack) McKinley, crafty third-baseman, to their lineup has added much more sparkle to Huntington Beach's Southern California nightball champions who storm the Municipal bowl here Tuesday night in an attempt to regain some of the prestige they lost in the 1936 premiere with Santa Ana.

Lopez-Christy Mat Card Drawn

With the officials of the California State Athletic commission "up to their neck" in official business yesterday during the meeting of the board, Promoter Sampson of the Orange County Athletic club failed to learn who would be appointed referee for Monday night's championship wrestling match here between Vincent Lopez, world titleholder in the eyes of the commission, and Vic Christy, powerful challenger.

Lopez originally demanded that Don McDonald of Long Beach, recognized as the foremost mat referee in the game, be named to handle the bout. But Sampson informed the champion that it would be entirely up to the commission.

Bill McCormack, the 245-pound Taibet grappler, and former jaycee football player, has been signed to appear in an added feature. McCormack meets "Whitman" McCarthy in a 10-minute affair, making Monday's program a five, instead of a four-event card.

INDIAN-TIGER FEUD BOILS MERRILY

Fans Peeved As Champs Move Up With 13-10 Win From Cleveland

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer
Among the numerous baseball feuds that are kept alive from year to year by the natural rivalry between neighboring cities, that between the Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians seems to be building up to major proportions.

So far this season the American leaguers haven't followed the example of the older circuit and begun tossing punches but there was plenty of warmth displayed yesterday when the world champions hammered the Indians down 13 to 10 to gain another step on the field. A brief display of peevishness by the fans and players enlivened the game in the seventh when Al Simmons and George Walker started a double steal and Simmons was safe at home when Catcher Billy Sullivan dropped the ball.

Feud in Making
Manager Steve O'Neill and the other Indians gathered to protest Umpire Ormsby's decision and the fans, evidently prepared for action, heaved fruit and papers on the field but the ruckus soon subsided.

The makings of another feud might have been seen in the indignities heaped upon the New York Giants by the Phillies. The National league cellar dwellers marched into the Polo grounds, sent the converted infielder, Bucky Walters, to the hill to pitch four-hit ball and slammed out a 15 to 0 victory.

Bag Two-Baggers
The defeat dropped the Giants a game and one-half behind the league-leading Cardinals, who celebrated a one-day stand in Pittsburgh by burying the Pirates 11 to 4. The Phils failed to gain as Brooklyn rallied to take an 11-inning 4-3 decision from the Boston Bees. The only other game saw the Chicago White Sox defeat the Browns 5 to 3 behind the knuckleball flinging of the veteran, Ted Lyons.

The Cards approached a National league record, hitting five doubles in the second inning—one short of the mark—and scoring six runs in that frame to present Dizzy Dean with his sixth mound triumph of the season.

Beavers Bounce Into Second Spot
By the Associated Press
Knocked from their perch by the suddenly revived Los Angeles batters, the Seattle Indians today joined the jittery clubs that can't stay put in the Pacific Coast league standings.

The Tribe slid into a third place with the Mission Reds as Portland's Beavers bounced out of a triple tie into second and the San Francisco Seals slipped down to fifth. The Reds, Seals and Beavers have been changing places daily.

Don Hurst pounded out two home runs to drive in four runs as Los Angeles won 8-5 last night, giving them a 3-1 edge on the series.

Under the leadership of Willie Kamm, who is supposedly under a three-day suspension, the Reds defeated the league leading Oakland club 7-5, but only with the aid of Acorn errors and after Jack La Rocca was lifted for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

The Seals got 16 men into the lineup as they lost to the Beavers 11-2. San Diego collected 19 hits to smother Sacramento 11-3.

Taylor Gets Easy One as Referee

KLEIN MARRIES
CHICAGO, May 23. (AP)—Charles H. (Chuck) Klein, hard-hitting outfielder who was traded this week by the Chicago Cubs to the Philadelphia Nationals, was married today to Mrs. Mary Torpy Lee, Philadelphia widow. The ceremony was performed at St. Mary's of the Lake Roman Catholic church on Sheridan Road, just a few blocks from the Cubs' park.

WYKOFF BEATEN IN 'BLANKET FINISH'

TROY'S STAR HURDLERS BEATEN

Jaysee Flash Triumphs Second Time in Week Over Cope, Staley

By ROBERT MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer
COMPTON, May 23. (AP)—California's favorite sons of the track and field world staged a great meet here for the benefit of some 6000 cash customers and the Olympic games war chest.

Four events stood out today in the wake of last night's happenings. Foremost was the three-way duel in the 100-meter dash between shortlegged Foy Draper of University of Southern California, his teammate, George Boone, and Frank Wykoff, a former Trojan, twice an Olympic games performer and now after a third try in the international show.

Draper and Boone nosed out the flying Wykoff in the proverbial "blanket finish." Draper won it in 10.6 seconds. Boone was about nine inches back, and Wykoff so close behind the finish was doubtful. It was Draper's race all the way, however. Three nights before he had run second to Wykoff's sensational winning time of 10.5.

Bright Shines Again
Leroy Kirkpatrick ran a smashing victory over Troy's famed hurdling team of Phil Cope and Roy Staley in the 110-meter high. The San Mateo Junior college flier breezed in with a comfortable margin. His time was 14.3. All three have equaled the world's record of 14.2, but last night marked the second time in a week Kirkpatrick has turned back Troy's aces.

The gruelling 5000-meter battle found Norman Bright of San Francisco's Olympic club winner after a hard fight with Louis Zamperini, running unattached. Bright's time was fast—14:55.1. Gordon (Slinger) Dunn, hefty Olympic club weight star, left his discus throwing rival, Kenny Carpenter of U. S. C., behind with a mighty toss of 171 feet 5 1/4 inches. It bettered Carpenter's 163 feet 1/2 inch, and the 169 feet 8 1/2 inches Paul Jaup, University of Washington, hung up as a national collegiate record in 1930.

Lu Valle Sheds Troy
The biggest surprise was the victory of young Jack Rand, formerly of San Diego State, in the pole vault, and the failure of the Trojan star, Earle Meadows, to do better than 13 feet. Rand won the event at 13 feet 6 inches after a jump-off with Loring Day of U. S. C.

Jimmy Lu Valle, formerly of University of California at Los Angeles, and 1935 IC44 champion in the quarter-mile, turned back Draper and Boone in the 200-meter dash. Lu Valle's time was 21 seconds flat.

FRANK BOYD SECOND IN HURDLE RACE
Frank Boyd, Santa Ana Junior college's fine little hurdler, annexed a surprise second to U. S. C.'s Estel Johnson in the 400-meter hurdles of the Compton track invitational last night. Fullerton jaycee's crack quartet was third in the mile relay.

PHIL SLAPPED DOWN; GETS A DRAW

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23. (AP) Phil Brubaker's skyrocketing rise into the heavyweight ranks bumped into the solid right hand of Andre Lenglet and sizzled on today minus the zoom that made the "Fighting Parson" the pride of San Francisco bay ring circles.

Brubaker hit the canvas last night for the first time since he laid aside his ministerial studies for a professional fight career, but got up to display a hitherto undisclosed gameness and endurance to battle his way to a ten-round draw.

The verdict was greeted with mingled cheers and boos. The seven-count knockdown came in the third round. Four rounds later, bloody and with his right eye nearly closed, the 195-pound Californian began the rally which won him the draw and had the 217-pound Frenchman wobbly.

Yesterday's Stars
By the Associated Press
ELDEN AUKEER, Tigers—Connected with three hits and drove in four runs in 5 1-3 innings to help defeat Indians.

PINKY WHITNEY, Phillies—Hit home run with bases loaded, jolted today a charge that San Francisco university athletes are paid salaries.

In a discussion of "professionalism," Jack Horner, student president of S. F. U., was reported to have told the student body presidents' convention here that most of his school's best football players are paid $5 to $35 a month.

After sharp repercussions were heard in San Francisco from the statement, convention heads issued a signed explanation declaring a student reporter had "obviously misinterpreted certain remarks facetiously uttered by Mr. Horner, and we definitely insist that those remarks were nothing more than banter and an attempt at humor."

Tom Lambert, U. C. L. A., Wallace Brooke, Stanford; Ed Smith, California Agricultural college, and James Bishop, U. S. S. joined in clarifying the situation. At San Francisco, the Rev. Fr. Harold E. Ring, president of S. F. U., said, "If Horner did make such assertions, he will be asked to explain each separate charge. They are preposterous."

Admiral Byrd reported he found snowy petrels nesting in the Antarctic.

STARS BLANK ORANGEMEN, 4 TO 0

Only Two Players Reach First Base As Jimmy Handcuffs Rivals

NATIONAL NIGHT BALL LEAGUE
Santa Ana, 4; Orange, 0. Huntington Beach, 3; Olive, 1 (41 innings). Anaheim, 7; Westminster, 5.

Huntington Beach at Santa Ana, Olive at Westminster, Orange at Anaheim.

By PAUL WRIGHT
Nightball's masterpiece—one of those delightful no-hit, no-run affairs—was engineered by James (Sweet Jim) Coates at the Municipal bowl last night. The victors were Orange's Cubs, 4-0, and the unusual conquest left Santa Ana's red-hot Stars still dominating National league standings with a perfect string of five wins.

Mr. Coates is gradually making a second-rater out of Russian Louie Neva, Huntington Beach's pitching pride. Neva not only was bested by the Santa Ana Cubs, 5-2, in the 1936 premiere, but he was nicked for six hits Tuesday by an Orange club that was completely paralyzed by Coates last night.

Liston (Memph) Hill's cellarites, who have played some rather close games this season, could reach first base only twice—and that on a walk in the second, an infield error in the fourth. Their hitting was confined to easy grounders and pop-ups. Coates' strike-out string was below par—with seven.

The offensive punch so characteristic of the Stars in the past 18 games was present last night, but their power was not as concentrated.

Goes Full Route
Roger Larimer, young right-hander, with two away, swayed, went the full route against Santa Ana, and although yielding an even dozen hits, he managed to keep them scattered throughout seven innings.

Catcher Ben (Bono) Koral, now hitting around the 400 clip after a mediocre plate performance last summer, was responsible for Santa Ana's winning run in the second when he poked a double to centerfield, scoring Al Reboin from second. Reboin opened the inning with a single, and gained an extra base on the play when Bris Richardson juggled the ball in right field.

The Lackey lads made it miserable for Pitcher Larimer in the fourth, with two away, Coates and Tommy Young singled, and Koral smacked his second successive double to score Coates. Rod Ballard came through with a sizzling single to center to send Young and Koral scurrying home. Santa Ana threatened again in the seventh, but Tom Denney and Nan Coats were left stranded.

Oilers Here Tuesday
Orange came dangerously close to scoring in the second frame when Ted Walker, first up, walked and Nelson Struck sacrificed him to second. Walker pulled up at third on Larry Leichtfuss' grounder, but Coates ended things by fanning Hal Welty.

Huntington Beach's 1935 champions, smacking under a 5-2 upset from the Stars in the '36 opener, come here Tuesday night to begin a new round with Santa Ana's pennant-bent aggregation.

TONIGHT'S PROGRAMS

By HOMER CANFIELD

AS A TRIBUTE to southern California, the General Motors concert Sunday evening will come from the Hollywood Bowl. This one-time-only move west is occasioned by the dedication of the automobile makers' new plant in Los Angeles. (KFI, 6)

Rosa Ponselle, radio's most delightful soprano, will be the guest soloist, lending her interpretations, among several selections, to "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," "Del raggio" aria from "Semiramide" and "Addio del passato" from "La Traviata."

Erno Rapee makes the trip west to conduct the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra. Rapee's stock has zoomed with his excellent work on this series. It will be interesting to note what he will be able to do with a strange group of musicians. If you're thinking of going out to Hollywood to see as well as hear this broadcast, KFI's Admission, I'm more than sorry to say, is by invitation only. PROFESSIONALS AT LAST!

Finally a novel twist has been given the amateur idea. The twister is Owen Crump, and the program, "Curtain Calls," to be aired for the first time Sunday night. (KFWD, 9) The purpose will be to give the thousands of amateurs who have won contests a chance to turn professional. Sunset Gasoline Co. will pay to see the trick done, buying forty-five minutes of air-time.

HOLIDAY BILL AT BROADWAY

A fast moving program for the Memorial day holidays has been booked by Manager Lester J. Fountain for the Broadway theater beginning Thursday and ending Saturday night.

Saturday the Indianapolis Speedway races will be one of the big attractions of the day, but those who can't attend the Indianapolis classic may see some real speeding in "Speed," the super attraction of a double bill. "Speed" co-stars James Stewart, Una Merkel, and Weldon Heyburn.

"Speed" is a drama based upon the daring of the unsung gods of speed—the automobile test pilots. "One Rainy Afternoon" is the second half of the holiday double bill and stars Francis Lederer, Ida Lupino and Hugh Herbert. Others in the picture are Roland Young, Joseph Cawthorn and Mischa Auer.

A color cartoon, "I Have to Take Orders from You," and a Fox news reel complete one of the best programs that has been shown here in many weeks, according to Mr. Fountain.

CURTAIN CALLS NEW PROGRAM

"Curtain Calls," which takes the air tonight at 9 o'clock for 45 minutes on KFWD and the Southern California network, for the first time provides the non-professional of outstanding ability, who has lived in momentary glory for the past two years, with a professional rating.

The vast army of outstanding artists will be called into action every Sunday night for one year on KFWD, KFOX and KFAC. Owen Crump, who has presided over amateur hours for the past year, conceived "Curtain Calls" to allow the non-professional to reappear on sponsored programs as paid professionals.

Given the backing of Jack Joy's augmented orchestra, "Curtain Calls" gets off to a flying start tonight with 15 artists who have won prominent awards on local programs.

Winners of the Jean Muir scholarship award will also appear tonight. They include Clara Hanna, Fred, James MacDonald, Anne Triola, Ira Barzilay and Lois Crump.

'Devil's Squadron' Ends Tonight

"Devil's Squadron" starring Richard Dix, Karen Morley and Shirley Ross, which has been playing to large crowds during the last two days at the Broadway theater, will close with tonight's showing. "Devil's Squadron" is based on the lives of test pilots for airplanes.

Sons of Pioneers On KVOE Tonight

Outstanding among tonight's schedule of broadcasts from KVOE will be the Sons of the Pioneers at 6:45 o'clock. "Jungle Jim" at 7 o'clock, dance rhythm and a presentation of the Manhattan Concert band.

The Sons of the Pioneers will offer a variety of the most popular old songs and tunes with "Casey Jones," "New River Train," "Good-bye My Lover Good-bye," and "Kiloyce's Stomp," as played by Hugh Farr.

More excitement is promised in tonight's episode of "Jungle Jim" with thrills galore as he and "Shanghai Lil" get into and out of

JOE E. BROWN COMING IN 'SONS O' GUNS'

COMEDY WILL OPEN HERE SUNDAY

"Sons o' Guns," Joe E. Brown's latest Warner Bros. comedy frolic, based on the hilarious musical hit by Fred Thompson and Jack Danahue will open at the Fox Broadway theater tomorrow for four days.

Besides the mirth stirring antics of the wide-mouthed comedian, the picture is spiced with famous martial airs of the original stage play, with new songs by Harry Warren and Al Dubin, sung by Joe himself, Joan Blondell, Winifred Shaw and the Chambers Male Chorus, and riotous dance numbers, all staged by the famous musical comedy producer, Bobby Connolly.

The story is a comedy romance dealing with the humorous side of doughboy life in France during the World war. The picture is said to be the most colorful and picturesque, and lavish in production values, staged with more elaborateness than any previous Joe E. Brown comedy.

Between his distaste for army discipline and enemy shells on the one hand and his timorous adventures with three jealous and aggressive sweethearts on the other, Joe finds that life is just one horrible nightmare after another, much to the amusement, it is said, of the spectator.

In addition to "Sons o' Guns" the second feature "Absolute Quiet," starring Stuart Erwin and Ann Loring is said to be one of the finest pictures released this season. A color cartoon, "Cobweb Hotel" and Fox news reel complete the program.

Three Queens to Beat

COLBERT STARS IN 'BRIDE COMES HOME' AT WALKER'S

Another romantic comedy with capable Claudette Colbert in the leading role, aided by Fred MacMurray and Robert Young and entitled "The Bride Comes Home," opens Sunday at Walker's State theater for an engagement of three days. Also on the bill is "Miss Pacific Fleet," starring Joan Blondell and Glenda Farrell.

"The Bride Comes Home" is the story of a newspaperman who induces a rich young man to back him in publishing a magazine for men. Into his life comes a young woman looking for a job. Both men find themselves in love with her, but the newspaperman wins out, only to have his bride-to-be walk out on him during a quarrel caused when she cleans up his untidy apartment. In a huff she sets off to marry the other fellow, but the newspaperman arrives in the nick of time to marry the girl himself.

In the cast with Miss Colbert, MacMurray and Young are William Collier, sr., Donald Meek, Johnny Arthur, Edgar Kennedy and others.

Miss Blondell and Miss Farrell play roles in "Miss Pacific Fleet" of two wise-cracking chorus girls stranded on the West coast, and trying to make enough money to get back to New York. A beauty contest, incentive for most of the hilarity in the film, finally is won by Joan with the aid of the fleet.

In the cast with them are Hugh Herbert, Allen Jenkins, Warren Hull, Eddie Acuff and Marie Wilson.

'SHOW BOAT' DRAWS BIG CROWDS

"Show Boat" with Irene Dunne, and Allen Jones, which opened at the Fox West Coast theater last Thursday is proving to be one of the most popular pictures of the year, according to Manager Lester Fountain.

"Show Boat" was booked by Manager Fountain for a solid week's showing at the West Coast and from indications will continue to "pack 'em in" during the next four days.

"And So They Were Married," the second half of the double bill features Mary Astor and Melvyn Douglas. In addition to the two features the program includes "By the Old Mill Stream," a color cartoon and a news reel.

Adept and fancy swapping was generally deemed to have become a lost art with the passing of the horse as a keynote of barter. However, Irene Dunne, star of Universal's "Show Boat" has proved herself an expert "swapper-inner."

'Moon's Our Home' Coming Thursday

"The Moon's Our Home" comes to the Fox West Coast theater for a five day run beginning next Thursday, May 28.

"The Moon's Our Home" stars Margaret Sullivan and Henry Fonda.

Directed by William A. Seiter from a Faith Baldwin story, "The Moon's Our Home" deals with two international celebrities who have learned to hate each other merely on the strength of their reputations.

As a fiery tempered, pampered, though beautiful screen star, Miss Sullivan refers to a noted world explorer-author over whom millions of women have gone mad, as the "kind of person who would be lost without his hot water bottle."

"Henry Fonda, as the globe-trotter, refers to the screen star as a "phony blonde with a face that resembled French pastry."

They eventually meet under assumed names, and, without knowing each other's real identity fall in love. They are married, but almost immediately, their temperaments clash.

"The Mine with the Iron Door"

'Boulder Dam' Film Here May 31

"Boulder Dam," a Warner Bros. production has been booked as the feature attraction at the Fox Broadway theater for Sunday, May 31, for a four day run by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

The picture is based on Don M. Templin's story of the building of this mighty project.

A second feature "Trouble for Two" and a comic and news reel complete the program.

Harold Bell Wright's famous story featuring Richard Arlen, Cecilia Parker and Henry B. Walthall is the other half of the double bill.

MAX MILLER URGES YOUNG JOURNALISTS TO 'KEEP ON WRITING'

EXPERIENCES TOLD HERE BY AUTHOR

Orange Reflector Wins 'All-Around' Honors Among H. S. Papers

Advising young men and women who wish to make writing their career, to write and keep on writing, Max Miller, novelist and former reporter on the San Diego Sun, addressed the third annual Santa Ana Junior college El Don banquet held last night at the Green Cat cafe.

Mr. Miller, citing experiences from his own career, said the time to write was now, not tomorrow. "If you put off that short story or novel until tomorrow," Mr. Miller said, "you will still be writing it 12 years from tomorrow. Though dead tired from work, sit down at a typewriter, even if you are so sleepy you can't see the keys. Write, and your writing will keep you awake. Let nothing push you from your chosen path. Instead, push all obstacles aside, and write."

Tells of Trials

Best remembered as author of "I Cover the Waterfront," a chronicle of his experiences as a waterfront reporter at San Diego, Mr. Miller told of his trials at having his novel published.

Continuing, he branded women's clubs and service organizations as "a bunch of people who will pay two dollars to see me as a side-show freak, but not a nickel to buy one of my books."

"They don't want to learn anything about writing," he explained. "If they did, they would stay home and read." He added definitely that this address before Orange county journalism students would be the last he would ever give.

John H. McCoy, journalism advisor of Santa Ana High school and Junior college, made his annual presentation of El Don keys, given each year to the students who hold staff positions on the paper. Editors John Rabe and Walt Bandick each received a key, as did Society Editor Ruth Warner, Feature Editor Stanley Wilson, Sports Editor John Henry, and Advertising Manager Charles Kiser.

Two Surprise Awards

Two surprise awards were made this year to the individual students, not members of the staff, who made the greatest contributions to El Don. The freshman award, a copy of Mr. Miller's book, "The Great Trek," went to Robert Swanson, and the sophomore award, also one of the author's books, "Fog and Men on Bering Sea," was won by Miss Edna Wilson, former editor of the Santa Ana High school Generator. Judges in the county high schools newspaper contest this year were Braden Finch, editor, Santa Ana Journal; George E. Hart, reporter, Santa Ana Register, and J. S. Farquhar, editor and publisher, Huntington Beach News. Their awards were evenly distributed among the school publications. The Orange Reflector was named as the best all-around newspaper. Best all-around paper printed as part of a local weekly, was the Brea-Olinda Wildcat News; best news story was won by the Fullerton Weekly Pleiades; best editorial by the Huntington Beach H-Lights; best feature story by the Tustin Broadcaster; and best sports story by the Orange Reflector.

Frank Rospaw Speaks

The awards were made by D. K. Hammond, director of Santa Ana Junior college. Presentation of awards was preceded by a word of greeting from Frank Rospaw,

These Nine 'Little Merchants' of Journal Won Contest

Here are the winners in The Journal's First Anniversary Carriers Popularity Contest which has just concluded. From left to right, they are: (Top row) Clarence Kennedy, Wilmer Swafford, Raymond Ross, Melvin Stigers and Leo Mader; (bottom row) Harold Herrin, Donovan Rowe, Bob Davy and Bill Barry.

Journal Carrier Contest Winner Says 'Thank You'

By RAYMOND ROSS
Naturally I feel very happy about winning the First Anniversary Journal Carriers' Popularity Contest, but I realize it was the loyal support of my friends and subscribers that made this victory possible. I want, therefore, to take this opportunity to thank all those who helped me in the contest. The many letters sent in for my credit are much appreciated and I will keep them as a memento of my first business experience.

CHURCH TO HEAR LIFE IN MEXICO

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Neff, here from Guadalajara, Mexico, will be guest speakers tomorrow at morning services in the First Congregational church, the Rev. Perry F. Schrock announcing this morning.

The Neffs are vacationing with friends at Balboa, accompanied by their twin sons, Charles and John. Mrs. Neff, writer of children's stories, will speak at the junior service and again at 11 o'clock service, when Mr. Neff is to tell of life in Mexico.

president of the California Newspaper Publishers Association, and editor and publisher of the Placentia Courier.

Journalism advisors of the high schools in attendance were the Misses Helene Moore, Huntington Beach; Emma B. Heid, Tustin; Velma Perry, Newport Harbor; Rosemary Bennett, Brea-Olinda; and Virginia Jones, Orange. Also present in their advisory capacity were John Findlay, Laguna Beach; John Crosley, Valencia; John B. Kennedy, Anaheim; and Everis Nelson, Fullerton.

Following the introduction of guests and advisors, Robert L. Hammond gave two vocal solos, accompanied by Miss Ruth Armstrong, and Dr. Ralph Murane played two marimba selections.

Raymond Ross, Journal carrier on Santa Ana route 41, today was named first place winner in The Journal carrier boys popularity contest which closed the first of this week. Raymond piled up 116,950 votes in the six weeks' contest, more than 19,000 over his nearest opponent. He was handed the $35 first prize today by Circulation Manager Ralph Frankis.

Harold Herrin, route 1-a, in second place, and Leo Mader, route 30, who provided serious competition throughout the contest, fought it out in the last few days for second place, with Harold finally winning the $20 prize, with a margin of slightly more than 2000 votes. His total votes were 97,700, while Leo's totaled 95,250.

Winners of the next six places, in the order named, were Wilmer Swafford, route 17; Clarence Kennedy, route 16; Donovan Rowe, route 19; Bob Davy, route 39; Bill Barry, route 27, and Melvin Stigers, route 6.

That there was intense interest in the contest, according to Mr. Frankis, was evident by the hundreds of letters received, and by the many phone calls asking for final standings, which flooded the circulation department throughout this week.

Through Mr. Frankis and the members of the circulation staff, the "little merchants" who deliver your paper to your home each night, The Journal today thanks every one of you who helped your carrier boy in his drive toward honors and cash. Every vote helped, because regular bonuses were given in addition to the nine prizes.

Winners of the next six places, in the order named, were Wilmer Swafford, route 17; Clarence Kennedy, route 16; Donovan Rowe, route 19; Bob Davy, route 39; Bill Barry, route 27, and Melvin Stigers, route 6.

of one square league, made to Gil Ybarra by Governor Alvarado in 1841. The majority of the grant lies in Los Angeles county.

Rancho Niguel, lying east of Laguna canyon, was granted in 1842 to Juan Avila. Avila sold to C. B. Rawson, who later sold the property to Lewis F. Moulton. Originally the grant was for 13,316.01 acres, but purchases have enlarged it to 22,000 acres. Rancho Niguel extends from the ocean north to the highway below El Toro.

Mr. Moulton, one of Orange county's pioneers, still manages the property, raising high grade cattle and other farm products.

YOUNG DANA SETS AIR RECORD

Descendant of Famous Writer Flies Coastline in 11 Hrs., 6 Mins.

SAN DIEGO, May 23. (AP)—Peter Dana, youthful descendant of a famous voyageur of a century ago, was the possessor today of an airplane record he thought he might as well "shoot at."

He flew from Vancouver, B. C., to Agua Caliente, Mex., in 11 hours and six minutes flying time, setting a record for 125-horsepower planes for the trip.

The 20-year-old youth, whose home is Holderness, N. H., is a descendant of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow and Richard Henry Dana, who in 1834 left his studies at Harvard and shipped on a windjammer around the Horn to California.

From his experiences, Dana wrote a classic in marine literature, "Two Years Before the Mast."

Young Dana took off from Vancouver at 4:01 a. m. yesterday and reached Agua Caliente at 4:35 in the afternoon. His elapsed time of 12 hours and 34 minutes excelled by one hour, 13 minutes that of young Frank Kurtz of Hollywood, set last year.

Dana stopped enroute for fuel at Seattle, Wash., Eugene, Ore. and Redding, Delano and Los Angeles, Calif.

Pomona Baritone to Be Soloist Sunday Night at First Methodist

With Charles Ross, Pomona, baritone, as featured solo artist, Elwood Bear will conduct the Santa Ana Symphony orchestra in the concluding concert of the season at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow in the First Presbyterian church.

Orchestra principals will be Georgia Belle Walton, concert master; Edward Burns, 'cellist; Simon Plas, second violin, and Leonard Auer, trumpet.

Mr. Ross, who is well known in the Pomona valley for his excellent voice, has sung Aida and other operas with success. At present he is choir director and soloist of the First Presbyterian church of Pomona. He will sing "It Is Enough" from "Elijah" by Mendelssohn; "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen" by Clarence Cameron White, and "Deep River."

Feature Symphony

Schubert's "C Maj." symphony is the chief symphonic work on the program. The following movements will be played: andante con moto; scherzo (allegro-vivace), and finale.

The andante con moto is a slow movement of great lyric beauty, containing also powerful dramatic contrasts. This movement shows superb mastery over structure, and the remarkable intuition of its composer.

The scherzo is of unusual sweep. The principal division is enlarged to encompass the sonata-allegro form, with two definite themes—as in Beethoven's Ninth, which is the only other example of such form dimensions in the literature of the symphony.

Movement Explained

The finale, a sonata-allegro of extraordinary breadth is a revel of exuberance, more jubilant and convincing than the finale of Beethoven's Ninth, according to a noted music commentator. At the same time it exhibits that fundamental simplicity synonymous with true greatness. The principal theme in this, also, is divided into parts, and the subordinate theme is analogous with thematic germ of the slow movement, not unlike an echo of the latter.

"Vorspiel" from "Lohengrin" is an epitome of the opera, and one of Wagner's greatest inspirations. It depicts a vision of angels bearing the "Crail" earthward to shed glory on the worshipper, then receding into the blue of the sky.

The reckless gaiety of Bizet will furnish the brilliant final touch on the program in a group of three numbers, "Carillon" from the first "L'Arlesienne" suite; "Minuet" and "Farandole" from the second. Philip Hood will play the flute solo in the minuet.

MEET CALLED ON CIVIL SERVICE

County, City Employees and Public to Hear About Plan Here

Facts about the proposed civil service amendment sponsored by the California Federation of Civil Service associations will be placed before the public at a mass meeting to be held in the Santa Ana city hall council chambers next Wednesday night. The meeting has been called by the Orange County Employees association and the city employees. The general public is invited to attend.

The meeting, which will convene at 7:30 o'clock, will be addressed by Grover O'Connor, San Francisco attorney for the California Federation.

At present 80 per cent of public employees in the state are on civil service, it is said, and through means of the proposed amendment it is hoped to place the balance of public employees on the same status, with certain exceptions.

All public employees, on civil service rating, it was explained, are not subject to removal except for incompetency, habitual intemperance, immoral conduct, insubordination, repeated discourteous treatment of the public, dishonesty, conviction of a felony, inattention to duties and engaging in prohibited political activity.

County and city employees already have held several meetings on the subject, without arriving at a conclusion in regard to their stand on the matter.

Mrs. Lewis F. Moulton Is Hostess in Rancho Niguel at Art Gallery Tea

300 Guests at Party; Music Diversion

Interest Is Mounting as Orange County Social Circles Swell Fund

Three hundred guests, women of Orange county, were bidden to the month art musicale-tea given by Mrs. Lewis F. Moulton yesterday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock in her beautiful El Rancho Niguel home on the Capistrano road for the benefit of the Laguna Beach Art gallery, which faces loss of its new building through default of a mortgage.

Mrs. Moulton, herself an artist and a lover of art, opened her home in a very gracious gesture to aid to the gallery. In turn, each of the first group of women she invited bid groups of their friends, and they, theirs, to the party, which really was three rounds of teas in one.

Three musical programs were given in the three hours, at which the guests were received and served in groups.

Beautiful flowers bloomed in profusion on the terraced lawn, where quantities of tea beach umbrellas provided shade and innumerable gay-frocked women strolled, chatted and sipped tea.

NEW PRESIDENT

MRS. MALCOLM MACURDA

MRS. MACURDA TO LEAD PEGASUS CLUB NEXT YEAR

Mrs. Malcolm Macurda will succeed Mrs. Rose Havelly as president of Pegasus Literary club next year, it was decided at Thursday afternoon's meeting in the home of Mrs. C. C. Fuller, 1014 Louise street.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Walter Foote, vice president and Mrs. J. B. Wolfe, secretary treasurer.

The club will be 10 years old June 22. June 18, a birthday luncheon will be given. Mesdames Nelson Visel and Charles Briscoe are the luncheon committee.

Mrs. Caleb Jackson's quotation for the day was "What fools these mortals be!"—Puck. Mrs. Walter Foote read "This Night." Mrs. Macurda provided two numbers, Mrs. Earl Morris gave two, Mrs. Visel read two poems from "Archie and Mehtabel." Mrs. Justus Birtcher read a poem, and Mrs. C. C. Fuller two poems.

Mrs. Frank Was read Mexican Christmas poems and a sketch, Wanda Marie Wood read the sketch in the Allied Arts festival. Mrs. Caleb Jackson presented two offerings. Mrs. Frank Lansdown did two numbers.

Mrs. Ray Brown and Mrs. C. C. Fuller's mother-in-law were guests. The tea hour featured a lovely arrangement of enormous peonies in a bowl and white candles in crystals.

MRS. W. A. HAZEN FETED BY FRIENDS ON BIRTHDAY

The birthday anniversary of Mrs. William A. Hazen, of McFadden street, was the occasion for a merry surprise party given by Mr. Hazen and Mrs. Effie M. Crawford at the latter's home on Tustin avenue, Thursday night.

Following a delicious chicken dinner served by Mrs. Crawford, with Joe Hazen, Santa Ana, Mrs. Cora C. Crawford, Long Beach, and Mr. and Mrs. William A. Hazen as guests the group was enjoying a pleasant social time when a number of friends arrived, surprising the honor guest.

Games and contests were enjoyed and Mrs. Hazen received many pretty birthday gifts. Mrs. Crawford and Mr. Hazen, assisted by Mrs. Harry Stanley, served refreshments, including a birthday cake baked by Mrs. John T. Maret, Santa Ana.

Those sharing the celebration with Mrs. Crawford and Mr. and Mrs. William A. Hazen were Joe Hazen, Santa Ana; Miss Cora C. Crawford, Long Beach; Enos E. Elton, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Marchant, Miss Mildred Marchant and grandchildren, Sam, Lenora and Donald Marchant, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stanley and son, Harry; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hatch, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Kennedy, Tustin.

MRS. MURIEL BRAY ENTERTAINS AT LUNCHEON

Mrs. Muriel Bray entertained Thursday for a group of intimate friends among members of the Native Daughters, inviting them for luncheon and a tour of the beautiful gardens surrounding her home, 2022 Bush street.

Potted plants were presented to each guest, and baskets of blooms from her gardens decorated the interior of the house. After luncheon the group strolled through the garden, picking a quilt for homeless children.

Late in the afternoon Mrs. Bray served tea to her guests, who were Mesdames Muriel Pope, Eunice Fox, Mattie Edwards, Hazel Paul, Alice Rogers, Elva Selvidge, Mae West, Genevieve Hisey, Alta Marcel, Mathilda Lemon, Elizabeth Marcel and the Misses Gladys Edwards and Joan Bray.

Stanley Kurtz of El Modena, assisted at the piano by Mrs. Kurtz, also sang at the concert, which benefited a church of the community.

CLARENCE GUSTLIN GUESTS AT PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gustlin of Santa Ana were guests at a lovely evening party given in San Pedro after a benefit concert at which Mr. Gustlin played Thursday evening.

Stanley Kurtz of El Modena, assisted at the piano by Mrs. Kurtz, also sang at the concert, which benefited a church of the community.

May Festival Outstanding Success

Maytime, with all its fragrance and color, was captured and allowed to bloom riotously in parish rooms of the Episcopal Church of the Messiah Thursday afternoon, for annual May festival of the church women's auxiliary.

Bougainvillea curled trellis-wise up supporting columns about the room. Arbor-fronted booths along the booths, resembling European sidewalk cafes.

At the door, Miss Minnie Besser, Mrs. Etta Evans, Mrs. Ira Mercer and the Rev. W. J. Hatter greeted the guests as they arrived, to drift from booth to booth and stop for tea and conversation at the gay center tables.

At the lace-spread, main tea table, Miss Lorett Spang and Miss Katherine Chapman presided. Mrs. John Lacy Taylor served as chairman of tea arrangements.

Pleasant intervals in the afternoon were furnished by Mrs. Vera Williams, who sang two groups of songs, accompanied by Harold Griger; the junior college girls' octet; Miss Eleanor Buckels, who played two piano selections, and Mrs. Merritt White, who gave a book review.

Mrs. Frank Mathews served as general festival chairman. Mrs. George Lusk headed the decoration committee; Mrs. Adelaide Lowe and Mrs. E. F. Museum, fruits, flowers and vegetables booth; Mrs. George Lusk, candy, and Mrs. Dennis Dawson and Mrs. S. P. Freeman, cooked food booth.

MISS LENA BROKAW COMPLIMENTED BY FACULTY GROUP

Honoring Miss Lena Brokaw, who is resigning her teaching position in June after years of service in the Santa Ana schools, Julia Lathrop Junior high school faculty members entertained at tea Thursday afternoon from 4 to 5:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Carl Sanborn, 428 West Washington avenue.

In the receiving line with Miss Brokaw were Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Nelson and Mrs. Grace Wolff of the Lathrop faculty. Mrs. Iva Webber and Mrs. J. A. Cranston presided at the tea table.

Gardenia corsages were presented to those in the receiving line and to Mrs. Webber and Mrs. Cranston. Mrs. Sanborn's home was decorated with pink gladioli, blue delphinium and varicolored snapdragons.

Among the guests were Miss Lena Brokaw, Miss Louise Brokaw, Messrs. and Mesdames J. A. Cranston, Frank Henderson, H. G. Nelson, Ralph Baker, Harold Moody, C. R. Nisewanger, Burton Rowley, Carl Sanborn, Ferris Scott, George Lake, Richard Basse, Mesdames Grace Wolff, Frances Beeson, Marguerite Hill, Iva Webber, Donna Ward, Mervin Bryte, Carson Smith, Golden Weston, Ethel Sinke and Raymond Smith.

MUSICAL PROGRAM, INSTALLATION CLOSE YEAR

A musical program by students and installation of officers featured final meeting of the year for Lowell Parent-Teacher association Tuesday afternoon. Arthur Corey, assistant superintendent of county schools, spoke on "Wise Use of Leisure Time."

Medieval songs were sung by sixth grade pupils under direction of Mrs. Hazel Hessel. Kindergarten pupils presented a musical dramatization, "To Narcissus," directed by Miss Lenora Fernandez.

Miss Mildred Mead was in charge of the program. D. W. Stover led singing by the Lathrop Junior high school boys' glee club.

Corsages were presented to those participating in installation of officers, conducted by Mrs. Mary B. Robertson. Mrs. Richard Luers, elected to a second term as president, received a president's pin from Mrs. Dale Griggs.

Refreshments were served by Mesdames George Dove, Ralph Davis, Alfred Henson, Richard Maher and George Mayer.

ST. JOSEPH'S SCHOOL HOLDS YEARLY OUTING

Boat rides, games, contests and a picnic dinner made Wednesday memorable for 150 pupils of St. Joseph's school, when the Parent-Teacher association of the school held annual picnic outing for the youngsters in Irvine park.

Parochial schools in Long Beach, Fullerton and Anaheim added their pupils to the crowd of merry, active children. Sisters from St. Joseph's of Orange and members of the local P.-T. A. unit directed activities.

Mrs. Philip Telef served as general chairman, assisted by Mesdames J. P. Murphy, Robert Sand, Rhines, Sackerson and Miss Helen Markel.

WIFE OF RULER

MRS. V. L. MOTRY

Her Husband's Interests Are Hers

Not every wife can stay as close to her husband as can this week's subject in our series of portraits of the wives of Santa Ana's civic leaders — Mrs. V. L. Motry, 707 South Van Ness street, whose husband has been exalted ruler of the Santa Ana B. P. O. E.

Mrs. Motry was Miss Myrtle Callanan when she was married in Clear Lake, Iowa, to Mr. Motry. They came to Santa Ana 15 years ago from the middle west, and have made numerous friends since that time. Mrs. Motry is very much interested in her husband's grocery business and spends much of her time at the store with him.

For the past five years she has been active in the Elks organization, while Mr. Motry has been in it for 10 years.

Her home, her garden, reading, cooking and entertaining all give pleasure to Mrs. Motry, whose main joy is that of living in California, which she cannot bear to desert even for a visit to her former home state.

MRS. E. B. TRAGO BACK FROM TEXAS WITH GUEST

Mrs. E. B. Trago, 216 Cypress avenue, returned early this week by automobile from Texas, where she spent two months visiting.

Accompanying the Santa Anan home was Miss Ivy Dell Brown of Houston, who is her houseguest.

While in Houston, Mrs. Trago visited her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Trago, and toured Texas with Gene, who is branch manager of General Motors Acceptance corporation.

Mrs. Trago also visited New Orleans, and after obtaining a new automobile, returned with her guest to Santa Ana by way of the Carlsbad caverns and the Grand canyon.

En route, in Las Cruces, she saw former Santa Anan, Shirley Thomas, and in Prescott, Ariz., visited Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Roper. Dr. Roper is a brother of Parke S. Roper of Santa Ana.

Mrs. George Wells' chuckle over a fellow Kiwanian who fell in the lake up to her ears at the first Kiwanis ladies' day fishing party, two years ago, reminds there's trip on, next week.

Deep red and white woolly hollyhocks are a lovely front border on the vacant lot just north of 828 North Broadway.

The white-green home of Miss Margaret Von Essen is always immaculately kept. . . . we like the iron fence outside the home at 636 North Broadway. . . . also the red potted geraniums, Colonial shutters and pansy-bordered group of rose trees in front lawn of the home at 1068 North Broadway.

A serape of purple bougainvillea blossoms hangs over the home of Mrs. M. P. Kersh, 327 Halesworth street.

Into this white home go neighbors and friends in a more or less steady trail, to tell their joys and sorrows to Mrs. Kersh's sister, Mrs. E. M. Boyd, who spends almost all her daytime hours in an invalid's chair.

A heavy staff helps Mrs. Boyd get about the house a little, but mostly she sits. There is nothing of the pallid invalid about her, though. Her brown eyes sparkle and snap, and her softly wavy brown hair is swept back into a tidy knot.

Her hands are seldom idle, and fashion dozens of crocheted rugs, bags, bedspreads and sometimes, spicy cookies! Her prize output is an elaborate party-go-out, made even larger than a fullsize bed. Occasionally she sells one of the articles she makes, and this gives her a pride of accomplishment.

Friends delight to tell her their problems, and she enjoys listening and lending her counsel. All, in all, she proves the efficacy of keeping busy and avoiding idle hours.

Fresh Fish, Is Expectation of Kiwanis

Fresh fish! It's not a trade call but a call to battle for Santa Ana Kiwanians, who will entertain their wives at their third annual fishing party and dinner at the Rainbow Angling club, Azusa.

Two fish per person is the limit set for the party, which will begin when cars leave Santa Ana at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Dinner is set for 6 o'clock. Prizes are to be given to the man and women who capture the largest trout.

Each year the party has proven exceedingly popular with the service group, and the current party is being anticipated as a highly pleasurable occasion. Ray Radant is general chairman of the outing.

TEAPOT TATTLE

By ELLEN SNEBBLEY

Don't tell anybody—but your Tattler has been reading!

It was a day when she couldn't do much else, and a book meant a glance away from reality. It was a not-so-new volume, but one just added to her own library. . . . "The Thatched Roof," by Beverley Nichols.

One time last year we noted the charm of the sister book, "Down the Garden Path," by a young Englishman who has found peace and excitement mingled in his country home and garden in the mythical village of Alhway.

We mention the book not alone because if you've already read it, this may remind you to read it again, and if you haven't, you're missing a marvelous treat—but also because it starts off a whole long line of more or less idle thoughts, today.

To begin: don't you enjoy the lovely art of pottery, the idyllic bubble bowls and oddity fun ways of arranging flowers? Time was, when you could dash through the garden, snapping off a snapdragon, grasping at a handful of daisies, snipping rosebuds, adding forget-me-not and meadowrue for good measure, and plopping them also a nice frog in a dull bowl, have a pretty bouquet.

Today, one has to think of colors, of tone and of symmetrical outline. One starts with one or two horns-of-plenty, perhaps. Adds white flowers and blue cornflowers. Stops adding and arranges the vases artistically. Fin!

Or, one cuts all one's stock or carnations with short, even stems. Crushes 'em together in a mound on sand or in a low vase, and plunges a candle into the center. Voila, something smart in centerpiece.

In madame's boudoir, however, the dainty little nosegays still find favor, and that's the sort we like best to fix. Perhaps because even a desultory sort of flower garden yields a bountiful harvest for the less thought-taking bouquet!

Saw the grandest little shaggy black dog, scottie, poodle or what you will, sitting patiently outside his popular cafe, yesterday morning. He had the big, earnest brown eyes which are nicest of all in canine faces. Couldn't see his master or mistress, but you may be sure he had the one exit carefully "shadowed," the patient little dog.

Mrs. George Wells' chuckle over a fellow Kiwanian who fell in the lake up to her ears at the first Kiwanis ladies' day fishing party, two years ago, reminds there's trip on, next week.

Deep red and white woolly hollyhocks are a lovely front border on the vacant lot just north of 828 North Broadway.

The white-green home of Miss Margaret Von Essen is always immaculately kept. . . . we like the iron fence outside the home at 636 North Broadway. . . . also the red potted geraniums, Colonial shutters and pansy-bordered group of rose trees in front lawn of the home at 1068 North Broadway.

A serape of purple bougainvillea blossoms hangs over the home of Mrs. M. P. Kersh, 327 Halesworth street.

Into this white home go neighbors and friends in a more or less steady trail, to tell their joys and sorrows to Mrs. Kersh's sister, Mrs. E. M. Boyd, who spends almost all her daytime hours in an invalid's chair.

A heavy staff helps Mrs. Boyd get about the house a little, but mostly she sits. There is nothing of the pallid invalid about her, though. Her brown eyes sparkle and snap, and her softly wavy brown hair is swept back into a tidy knot.

Her hands are seldom idle, and fashion dozens of crocheted rugs, bags, bedspreads and sometimes, spicy cookies! Her prize output is an elaborate party-go-out, made even larger than a fullsize bed. Occasionally she sells one of the articles she makes, and this gives her a pride of accomplishment.

Friends delight to tell her their problems, and she enjoys listening and lending her counsel. All, in all, she proves the efficacy of keeping busy and avoiding idle hours.

Mary Stoddard Keep Your Word, "Forlorn," and Forget Boy Who Can't or Won't Keep His

Here's a 14-year-old miss with a 17-year-old boy friend who "drank quite a bit" before he met her, and has gotten drunk twice since she told him that she would quit unless he stayed sober.

Now she feels too fond of him to carry out her threat.

Dear Miss Stoddard: I am a girl of 17 and have been going with a boy who is 17 for eight months. Before I started going with him he drank quite a bit, but quit when I started going with him. A few nights ago he went out with some of the boys and got drunk. I told him if he got drunk I would quit him, and now I don't know what to do.

I think a lot of him and would do anything to get him to quit drinking. I do not drink myself. Could you tell me what to do?

FORLORN.

Keep your word, forget him and the "forlorn" attitude. It would be ridiculous for you to do otherwise if you were twice 14, or three times 14. There are so many more interesting things in life than moping over a boy who is playing with fire.

If he later shows a preference for your company instead of drinking companions, try again, if you still want to. Dropping him now will teach him that you mean what you say, and give your opinions greater value for both of you.

After being "taken for a ride," executives of the Edison school Parent-Teacher association were chuckling yesterday over their experiences Thursday evening, when Edison faculty members entertained in a novel way.

The instructors called for their "victims" at 8 o'clock, and headed for Belmont Shore, where dinner on the program will be piano numbers by pupils of Carolyn Haughton; tap and ballet dances directed by Joy Dowsett; recitations by voice and drama students of Holly Lash Visel and Lois Rees Auer.

Miss Haughton, for many years a teacher in Santa Ana, has studied in New York under Tobias Marthay, Angella Diller and Abby Whitelie. She has also studied under Harrel Brown and at U. C. L. A.

Holly Lash Visel, familiar in Santa Ana for her dramatic and musical work, is a graduate of the Cumnook School of Expression, and has been associated with little theater groups here.

Often seen in Community Players' productions, Lois Rees Auer is a newcomer to the Visel studio staff. She has been on the professional stage, is graduate of Cumnook and has studied at U. S. C.

Joy Dowsett has been prominent in dancing troupes on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and has danced in concert appearances with the famous Denishawn troupe.

Tonight's recital is open without charge to all persons interested.

Miss Helen Markel, pretty bride-elect of Robert Horn, was feted last evening at a lovely party given by her sister, Mrs. Ralph Mitzel, in Orange.

Julius H. Haupt and Mrs. A. L. Banks were prize in bridge. Larkspur and snapdragons appointed the home. Strawberry shortcake and coffee were served in the dessert hour.

Other guests included Mesdames William Finkler, Walter Markel, J. Ogden Markel, Frances Petty, Geraldine Haupt, Bonnie Brock, Leola Schroeder, Harriet Fowler and Helen Markel.

SANTA ANA STUDENTS VISIT UCLA CAMPUS

Misses La Vonne Franson and Marjorie Lauderbach and Muriel Hallman and Carl Aubrey, Santa Ana High school senior students, motored to Westwood yesterday.

They looked over the U. C. L. A. campus, with special interest since they are to be graduated from high school next month and are already college-minded.

VISIT S. A. GARDENS

Members of the home department of the Tustin Farm center who spent Thursday visiting the Rancho Santa Ana Botanic gardens included Mesdames J. H. Pankey, W. W. Tantlinger, George Phillips, J. D. Griset, John L. Hill, Frank Jones, John Dunstan, Charles H. Whitney, Fred L. Wilson, Frank Leonard, Fred L. Schwendeman, George Gaylor, William A. Hazen, John Bruns and the Misses Rachel Jones and Frances Dunstan.

Mrs. Wilson To Lead Section

Mrs. J. T. Wilson will lead the Eboli garden section next year, it was decided when the section met Thursday afternoon in the Eboli clubhouse. She will succeed Mrs. Mark Lacy.

Other new officers are Mrs. George Raymer, vice-leader; Mrs. Mesdames A. J. Cruickshank, D. A. Harwood, C. E. Utt, L. A. White, James Tarpley and R. C. Hoiles hosted for the luncheon.

In the program, Mrs. J. L. Hosmer of Laguna Beach presented an entertaining and informative discussion on flower arrangements. She began with bright blossoms for the breakfast table. In the dining room she suggested never more than two kinds of flower for formal arrangements, and either lacy or a low bowl to avoid obstructing vision of diners.

Living room bouquets should be very formal in most cases, she said, and boudoir bouquets may be quaint and pastel. She illustrated each point with a lovely bouquet.

STEELS LEAD STOCKS IN ADVANCE

Issues Get New Grip on Recovery; Business News Helps Use

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, May 23. (AP)—Buoyed by the strength of steels and specialties, stocks got another grip on recovery in today's market.

In a repetition of the recent quiet dealings, many issues pushed ahead fractions to 2 or more points. The close was firm.

Transfers approximated 400,000 shares.

Business news brought out renewed demand for most leading equities. Steels reflected an increase in quotations for semi-finished and finished steel products.

Among the foremost gainers were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, American Steel Foundries, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Western Union, Pullman, Du Pont, Douglas Aircraft, Johns-Manville, U. S. Smelting, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Westinghouse, Santa Fe, Delaware and Hudson and N. Y. Central. Greyhound was up around 5 at its best in response to the declaration of an initial dividend.

The motors were only moderately ahead, as were most of the utilities and rails.

WEEK'S CITRUS REVIEW

LOS ANGELES, May 23. (AP)—California oranges went to $3.44 a box average during the past week in the eastern and middle western auction centers, a gain of 25 cents per box over the average of the preceding week.

Lemons dropped 62 cents from their high of last week to an average of $6.31 on increased volume and generally cooler weather in the auctions.

Volume for oranges totaled 500 cars, 83 more than a week ago while lemon volume was up 86 cars to a total of 267 cars. Despite the drop in the lemons prices, lemons are still bringing $1.18 more than two weeks ago when the average for the week was at $5.13.

W. C. Frackelton, manager of the California-Arizona orange and grapefruit agency, announced next week's prorate as follows: Interstate commerce—500 cars valencia; from California, 990 cars valencia; from Southern California, 10 cars valencia; from Arizona, 10 cars valencia; from Imperial, 10 cars valencia. Intra-state shipments were given as 75 cars of valencia from northern California and 150 from Southern California.

No prorate was set for next week on California navel, shipments being left free to ship all available stock is estimated at not more than 40 cars.

Approval of the three new amendments to the California-Arizona citrus marketing agreement and order was reported as follows: The California Fruit Growers exchange reports on both the private sale and auction markets as follows:

"Average prices on navel oranges improved somewhat during the week with prices lower on large sizes but higher on medium to small fruit. Sales were up compared with a week ago.

"There are only a few cars of navel remaining for shipment; valencias will be in full supply in the domestic market this next week.

"Grapefruit continues unchanged under good demand and very satisfactory sales reported in some eastern markets. The bulk of these shipments are still from the desert section. Movement of summer grapefruit from Southern California has begun.

Florida shipped 661 cars of oranges and 454 cars of grapefruit during the week ended May 15 and estimate 450 to 650 cars of oranges and 200 to 250 cars of grapefruit for the week ended May 23. The United States department of agriculture estimate, revised as of May 1, indicates a commercial Florida crop of 39,500 cars of oranges and 17,500 cars of grapefruit. This is slightly higher on oranges and about 20 per cent less on grapefruit than this year.

"Exports of California citrus are holding up well within the exchange selling 125 to 150 cars weekly.

"The lemon market settled back to a more normal basis with very heavy sales and prices still above the past five-year average. Supplies out are the heaviest on record for the comparable weeks."

FLINT SCHOoled EGYPT'S KING

The local educator, served as teacher to the future king at Roberts College in Istanbul, Turkey. The young prince was enrolled in Mr. Flint's class in English, during the school year of 1933-34.

"The new king was easily better than an average pupil," Mr. Flint recalled. "He was not allowed to live in a dormitory with other college students, and was not expected to mingle with his classmates very much."

800 INVITED TO ZIELIAN PICNIC

Invitations are out to 800 former Tustin elementary school pupils for the 16th annual picnic reunion honoring John J. Zielian, former principal of the school, who now resides at 916 North Sycamore street.

Each year the graduates gather in Irvine park to hold class reunions and recall school days presided over by Mr. Zielian, principal from 1889 to 1909. Letters came from all parts of the country from pupils unable to attend, and between 200 and 300 of "Zeke's Bunch" arrive to shake hands with Mr. and Mrs. Zielian.

The Sidewalk Spectator:

To The Journal: See where the Gifford Lemons, a young couple who joined the government's Matanuska colony in Alaska on their honeymoon, are satisfied with each other, their baby and the colony at the end of the first year.

Well, now, according to reports, it is estimated that the Alaskan project will cost the government about $5,000,000 or—watch closely, the end is quicker than the eye—$25,000 to $100,000 per family!

Wonder if the young couple wouldn't rather have had the money?

Yours, thinking so, GLENN L. THORNE, The Sidewalk Spectator.

MEN SEE TRIPLE HERE WITHOUT SINGLE DRINK

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23. (AP)—There is a tavern here in which one may see three identical bartenders without having had a single drink.

The Shields triplets—Virgil, Charles and Theodore—are 25 years old and look very much alike except that Charles is taking on weight.

Born here, they won a prize when exhibited at the 1915 world's fair. Two became bank clerks and one worked for a financial service, but the depression cost them all their jobs. After real came along, they joined forces to open a tavern which they have run two and a half years.

The triplets, who all play violin, are married and live with their father.

"We're waiting for three nice girls to come along all at once," they explain. "We intend to get married the way we do everything else—by threes."

CENTENNIAL DIRECTORS BUILD PRAIRIE SCHOONERS

DALLAS, Tex., May 23. (AP)—Genuine prairie schooners, stage coaches and ox carts are so rare in the Southwest today that Texas Centennial exposition directors, collecting "properties" for the $150,000 historical pageant, are forced to reproduce most of the frontier-day vehicles they need.

They have found that virtually all antiquated coaches and wagons preserved from the nineteenth century have been taken to distant states. The cost of borrowing or buying them for the Texas show would be prohibitive.

"While we can find only two authentic old stage coaches in Texas, more than 100 of them are in New York state alone," explains August Vollman, properties director.

"I notice by the newspapers," a Fontana, Calif., man writes, "that you Midland girls define an ideal man as a fellow who is sincere, honest, faithful, considerate, courteous, sympathetic, cheerful, neat, possessed of a sense of humor and willing to go half way."

"I am all that, and more and will prove it to any girl willing to pay my way from here to Fremont."

"He's more than we asked for," the Midland girls commented. "Our ideal man is a fellow who will go half way."

"This fellow wants to come all the way—at our expense."

FREMONT, Neb., May 23. (AP)—Opportunity beckoned Midland college coeds from far away California today.

"I notice by the newspapers," a Fontana, Calif., man writes, "that you Midland girls define an ideal man as a fellow who is sincere, honest, faithful, considerate, courteous, sympathetic, cheerful, neat, possessed of a sense of humor and willing to go half way."

"I am all that, and more and will prove it to any girl willing to pay my way from here to Fremont."

"He's more than we asked for," the Midland girls commented. "Our ideal man is a fellow who will go half way."

NEW SONG SUNG FOR ROOSEVELT

A new song was dedicated to President Roosevelt at last night's meeting of Young Democrats in the Valencia ballroom. The song was written by R. G. Chambers and Vladimir Lenski. Last night it was sung before the audience of 600 persons, by J. A. Watkins. He was accompanied by Mrs. C. A. Culver.

The name of the new song is "Mr. Roosevelt Is the Man."

Fun to Piece—Easy to Follow

HOUSEHOLD ARTS BY ALICE BROOKS

Flower Makes Handsome Block
Pride of the West

Bright Prairie Flowers unfold their gay petals on a simply made quilt which you'll find real fun to piece. Designed for three fabrics, each flower may, however, be done in scraps of material, making each block different—a most colorful effect.

In pattern 5589 you will find the Block Chart, an illustration, for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Santa Ana Journal Household Arts Department, 117 East Fifth Street. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and PATTERN NUMBER.

BUCK ROGERS, 25th CENTURY A. D.

NOT ONLY ARDALA AND BLANKA, BUT ALSO DOCTOR HUEY HAD VANISHED ABOARD THE PATROL SHIP. WILMA AND I, SEARCHING FOR HUEY, THOUGHT WE HEARD A GROOM AMONG THE FUEL TANKS. THEN SOMETHING SEEMED TO MOVE AMONG THE SHADOWS.

HOW WEIRD, BUCK!

HEY, YOU! COME OUT OF THERE BEFORE I SHOOT!

DID YOU GET HIM?

NO! I MISSED! LIGHTS, WILMA!

IT'S—IT'S DOCTOR HUEY! OH BUCK!—WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH HIM? HE'S SO WHITE!—IS HE—

I—I DON'T KNOW, WILMA! B-BUT HE'S—HE'S STIFF—AND COLD!

A Dream Comes True

A PIONEER dream of 50 years ago becomes an impressive reality today with the official opening of the new $2,000,000 Newport yacht harbor.

It's fitting that the importance of the occasion has been recognized by President Roosevelt, whose radio signal started the parade, and by the presence of Governor Merriam as the ranking official of this state.

In a maritime way, the participation of hundreds of the finest pleasure craft on the western seas in the parade and celebration and the attendance of prominent shipping leaders and wealthy yachtsmen shows the respect which sea-going folk feel for the mighty achievement.

A real boon to coastal navigation, the newly completed harbor provides a safe, landlocked anchorage for even the biggest and finest yachts and for the immense flotilla of small craft which play such a big part in Southern California boating. It has the additional advantage of being free from usual grime, dirt and unsightly surroundings of the average commercial port.

Another important feature of the harbor is its value to national defense. Although the bigger naval vessels cannot enter, it offers a haven to the smaller fighting and patrol boats which are of vital value in adequate protection of the coast.

The new $2,000,000 pleasure port is destined, we believe, to bring almost immeasurable benefits to Orange county and the beautiful area of strands and hills which gird it. Already new growth in the attractive resort and recreation centers of Newport, Balboa, Corona del Mar and many others may be traced to the stimulating effect of the harbor.

California today pays homage to those practical dreamers of the past who first visioned the possibilities of the beautiful bay—and to those energetic doers of the present who turned the possibilities into such a magnificent reality.

Psychiatrist tells convention that feeble-minded auto drivers may be better than intelligent ones.
Must be true—look at all the feeble-minded drivers on the roads today.

Strength in Martyrdom

DR. TOWNSEND may walk right into martyrdom if congress blunders ahead and slaps him in jail for contempt. And probably nothing would suit him better.
In fact, the canny founder of the $200-a-month pension plan seems to be almost inviting the boys at Capitol Dome to place him in the lockup. Listen to this—

"If you want to cite me for contempt, I'll go over there and tell them just how much contempt I do have for the whole proceedings. But I won't face an investigation by congress itself, or by any group in which there are men of that type. I'd rather go to jail and spend the rest of my days there."

Considerable support to the martyrdom idea is added by the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, former chief organizer for Huey Long. The husky pastor, who wants to amalgamate the Townsend and the "Share-the-Wealth" movements, states—

"When they make an arrest, they arrest 20,000,000 people. We symbolize the following of one leader who was shot and another who is being persecuted. If our arrest and possible prosecution will awaken America to the threat of this Communist dictatorship in Washington, we shall count such suffering as well worth while. The program of persecution is the thing that has drawn me to Dr. Townsend."

There is a lot of sympathy for Dr. Townsend already—even among those who disagree with his program—because of the cruel circus which a bunch of stupid congressmen have attempted to make out of what was supposed to be a sensible, dignified investigation of one of the proposed remedies for America's economic ills.

Dr. Townsend is one of the nation's most influential figures as it is. Make a martyr out of him because of this investigation—and his power will be double.

This Is About Mice

TO THE new crop of college graduates, nearly ready for the picking, we can offer the assurance that they will "get along" if they have the type of ingenuity displayed by one University of Washington student.

This young man, during the summer vacation, got a job as a forest ranger at a lonely lookout station.

Unfortunately, he discovered, his cabin was overrun with mice. He had no traps and couldn't go back to get them. So he devised a substitute.

On the floor he set a low pile filled with water. With a crude hinge he attached a flat board, just slightly off balance, to the edge of the pile. The low end of the board rested on the floor, the high end was above the water—and to the high end was fastened a piece of cheese.

When a mouse smelled the cheese, he ran up the incline. Before he reached the cheese, however, he overbalanced the board, fell into the water and was drowned.
The board fell back into position, and the ingenious trap was ready for another victim.

In the morning, the pile was filled with drowned mice, and before long the cabin belonged to the ranger again.

Life is filled with obstacles to overcome. Many are more serious than an epidemic of mice, but the person who has the spunk to conquer them will make his mark in days ahead.

Whimsies of O. O. McIntyre

Outside my window, like wind blown leaves, shifting evening shadows are piling up that black mystery we call night. An established and valued friend, so the telephone informs me, has with a patient little sigh drifted out into the fathomless void. Almost as I write a clear, cold star twinkles forth in a sort of new-found ecstasy. All about, as though catching its prisms, squares of light pool into effulgence in a dozen spires. I like to think it is symbolical of the friend I have lost and the sudden afterglow he has achieved.

One releases old friends from their mortal husks with greater pang in serene years. Nothing is truer than that precious friendships are more difficult as the years crowd down. Smoother once sighed: "The tragedy of middle age is that we begin to lose old friends and cannot make new."

And I have heard of a fun-loving New Yorker who is turning to complete solitude. He has leased a country place 200 miles from Capetown, just because it's so far away. Here he expects to putter about a garden, rock on a sweep of verandah and meditate on the blessed promises. Fed up at 44.

So many excellent newspapermen have had their journalistic genesis in Denver. In the hurry of writing, I think of Courtney Ryley Cooper, Ford Frick, Damon Runyon, Burns Mantle, Bide Dudley and, of course, many more that escape me. I have often wondered what journalistic niche I would be occupying had I taken the trail to Denver. The famous Robert Payne, now editor emeritus of a chain of newspapers, called me to his office one day to offer the editorship of a then struggling sheet called the Denver Express. It was a temptation, for I was only 24 and it was release from copy desk slavery. But two weeks later I stated I came to New York. What a part decision plays in our lives!

Next to New York, the city that strikes me as having more newspaper glamour than any other is San Francisco. I believe a best of would show a surprising percentage of the crack gazetteers of the country either started in San Francisco or had working experience there. Certainly, many of the better known cartoonists and comic stripmen have off from there.

And no country has the sentimental appeal for its exiled sons and daughters that Holland has.
The Dutch are most difficult of all to transplant, although the best of colonizers. A good example of this is Hendrik Willem Van Loon, the author. It so overwhelms him at times he will scurry to any boat in the harbor to go back that very day. I know Holland only by motor and Hollanders say that is like crossing England in a plane. The real Holland of Zealand dress, scoop bon-nets and wooden shoes, may be seen only traversing the canals.

Yet the casual charm by motor of its wind-mills, geese, tulips, fields, dykes, sailing sloops, dog-pulled carts and weekly scrubbed cottages certainly foment an ache to return. And if there is a more heavenly spot than that heavily settled town of Deift, I want to set sail there some golden twilight when the long-delayed ship comes in.

I remember arriving in Amsterdam around midnight on our first visit. Our hotel room overlooked the Amstel, drifting by the familiar family barges. The umbra of night was a thin lemon haze, so light I sat by my window and read an issue of Variety. The next morning late I was awakened by an accomplished singer down the hall taking difficult intervals accurately in the manner of Richard Crooks. On our breakfast plates were red-roses asparagus with dew and in precise fan-like array slices of pumpernickel the correct shade of tobacco brown.

But we were to try him out in memory were wafer crumbs of bright yellow cheese—cheese with a tang that melted to the taste and clung. Cheese that would have dithered Bruno Lessing.

A lady in Los Angeles tells of the San Franciscan who had been in China for an extended stay on business. When he returned he brought back the No. 1 house boy of a rather urbane bachelor friend.

He explained to his wife at the dock that the boy was a treasure and he wanted to try him out.
He served an excellent dinner and all went well. Next morning the husband left early for business.
At 9 the boy knocked at the wife's door with a tray filled with a tempting breakfast. In about a half hour he returned, twined her shoulder and smiled knowingly:
"Time to go home now missy!"

NEW TACTICS
The Liberty League has changed its combat tactics against the New Deal. It is soft-pedaling its general ballyhoo, concentrating instead on quiet, intensive organizing, particularly in the Middle West. Colleges, too, are receiving special attention. Libertyites claim units in more than 300 institutions of higher learning. News of the reception for the press last week bore down heavy on refreshments.

They consumed 12 barrels of beer and 50 gallons of ice cream. . . .
TVA engineers estimate that it would take 3,700 years—or until the year 5636 A. D.—for Norris dam to fill up completely with silt; that is, if nothing were done to check soil erosion. . . . Air commerce officials say that for some unexplained reason the impression has become general that their agency is also an office for missing persons. They have received numerous inquiries recently regarding the whereabouts of individuals who disappeared after airplane trips.

Newsman to Senator Borah:

him to write the platform?"

TENNESSEE FEUD
One of the complaints raised by Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the Tennessee Valley authority, against David E. Lilienthal, whose reappointment as TVA director he opposed, was that Lilienthal played golf with Harcourt A. Morgan, the third board member. Dr.
Morgan contended that this friendship between his two colleagues was proof Lilienthal was conspiring against him. . . . Bernard Baruch, Wall street operator and one-time boss of Gen. Hugh Johnson, has completed a book which will be published at an early date.
Johnson is now reading proofs of the volume. . . . Senator Alben Barkley, keynoter at the Democratic convention in Philadelphia, scuttled a proposal that would have enabled hospitals to obtain government-manufactured helium at cost for the treatment of indigent asthma sufferers. Private helium producers in Kentucky, Barkley's home state, protested, claiming that the senate after-house had given its approval.

The federal reserve board's annual report, due next month, will contain heretofore unavailable information on the complex and controversial subject of excess bank reserves—now at record heights. . . . The American Federation of Hosiery Workers has sent Postmaster General Farley a hot letter charging that Democratic Boss Hague, mayor of Jersey City, N. J., used Democratic national committee letterheads to write members of the New Jersey legislature urging them to kill an anti-labor injunction bill. With Roosevelt the great friend of labor, the unionites want to know "how come" Hague was permitted to use committee letterheads for this purpose.

Analysis of the house vote on the Frazier-Lenke farm mortgage refinancing bill showed that of the 142 members voting for the measure, 34 per cent came from large cities with no farm population.

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Generalissimo of the Republican national convention are having a hard time trying to persuade Gov.
Alf Landon to agree—in the event
he is nominated—to stage his acceptance speech at the Cleveland convention. The managers are planning a monster political rally as the concluding feature of the convention, with the nominee as the big attraction. Landon is very chilly, however, to the idea of putting in a personal appearance.

First, because he thinks the plan appears the Democrats; second, because it would necessitate an air trip, which does not appeal to him. Alf has told the convention directors that he prefers an old-fashioned acceptance ceremony at Topeka. . . . Stewart McDonald, Federal housing administrator, has become Washington's most consistent dinner-out. He was surpassed, however, by his predecessor, Jimmy Moffatt. Dining out apparently goes with housing. . . .

Chief argument in the Pan-American Union this week was whether vorite. At the Kentucky Derby he won $1,500.

Said Senator Hiram Johnson on the senate floor: "I do not drink champagne frequently because of its cost."

AMERICAN LEAGUE
Diplomatic circles secretly are settling over the Colombian proposal for an American League of Nations. The plan has been carefully worked out by President Lopez, calls for definition of an aggressor nation, sanctions against an aggressor, annual assemblies in different American capitals, cooperation with Geneva. Under this plan the Monroe Doctrine would end because Article 21 of the Geneva covenant, which makes a special reservation regarding the Monroe doctrine, would be abolished. . . . Because of a mixup at Rural resettlement headquarters in Washington, checks for payment of contractors on the Hightstown, N. J., project were delayed several weeks. Result: Contractors refused to deliver materials. Work, already far behind schedule, was again stalled. . . . Roosevelt's committee on governmental reorganization is trying to get a $40,000 appropriation inserted in the pending second deficiency supply bill.
The committee is now financed by relief funds. . . . Lyle T. Alverson, director of the National Emergency Council, declined to use the official car and chauffeur going with his job. He lent them to Work-Relief Boss Harry Hopkins.

CHEERFUL HOSPITAL
To the Editor: It is significant of the times, that the Valley hospital has been brought up to such a fine standard. Every nook and corner spells perfection. The rooms are bright and cheerful and, if I may say, most desirable to be sick in.

Attention was drawn to the numerous electrical appliances for the relief of pain, necessary in an up-to-date hospital. The surgical department, and all connected therewith, seems excellent. We were particularly interested in a room furnished by the hospital alumni, which is charming in every detail and reflects good taste.

On hospital day, visitors were received by Dr. Ball (senior) and Dr. Raitt. Dr. Ball gave us a hearty handshake and seemed to be enjoying himself immensely. We enjoyed our short visit with him. Dr.
Raitt's smile and pleasant manner immediately made us feel at home.
Under the management of Dr.
Raitt and capable secretary, both reputable fine men, the hospital should succeed.

The resurrection of this hospital does not oversupply Santa Ana with accommodation for the sick.
America is a huge country. We citizens, like our country, are interested in big things, markets, churches and large hospitals,
etc. Many of us citizens inherit the herd instinct. Should our neighbor, Mrs. Jones, show preference for a large hospital, Mrs.
Smith, in all probability, will follow suit. We wish success to this enterprise, which unfortunately cannot be accomplished without patronage.

An interested visitor to the hospital expressed herself in this way, that smaller hospitals are more homey.

New York barbers are on strike and manufacturers are offering the success the manufacturers hope for the strike will continue

There's got to be one barber left the effect that two other friends were entering the shadows. Not such a comforting introduction, and one entirely out of harmony with the beauties of the day, but there is always something to com-the value of life's friendships. For it is written, "Blessed are they

GREAT WESTERN INDUSTRIES

Interpreted by MAYNARD DIXON, Famous Painter

WHEATLANDS OF THE WEST THE WEST continues as of old to make important contributions to America's "bread-basket," as the waving fields of yellow wheat cover the fertile valleys with color and rich life, supplying the one vital necessity of mankind in generous abundance. Nowhere in the world do the ripe grains yield up their goodness so readily to cultivation. Today more than ever western farmers produce their share of the earth's fundamental food, and find their labor justly rewarded.

Weird Power of "Death Ray" Told by Inventor

A Corner of Francis Cook's Study, Where the Inventor Rests From Strenuous Days of Electrical Research to Delve Into the Mysticism of the Far East Which He Learned in Childhood.

Francis Cook Displays Two Unique Ray-Tubes, Designed for Advertising Signs. Through These Tubes Blaze Globes of Red, Blue and Yellow Fire, Rising to the Top and Exploding.

Strange 'Life Rays' Used To Revive Animals — Electric Chair Gives Health

By WHIT WELLMAN

IN THE darkened basement laboratory of an old San Francisco house are hidden a dozen startling inventions—amazing electrical rays confined in delicate glass tubes, a health-giving "electrical chair," a "death-ray" which when shot from a machine gun may revolutionize modern warfare; "life-rays" that do strange things to inanimate objects and bring small animals back to life.

All are the inventions of a man who calls himself "a cook out of work"—but who is more accurately an electrical genius without formal schooling, who has sought occult and scientific knowledge in every part of the world from Arabia to Asia. His name is Francis Cook. His lined face becomes intense, his keen gray eyes light with enthusiasm as he leads the way down a dim passage to a maze of purple, red, and yellow lights in the weird "testing chamber" under his home.

Perhaps the creation he likes best is his "electrical chair," through which he says run 60,000 volts of electricity and is virtually a "throne of health." His son, Francis, willingly takes his place in the heavy, wired chair. In his hands the boy holds two small glass tubes, unattached to any wires. His father turns on the power, and the tubes gleam in the darkness—red, orange, purple—evidence, the inventor says, that the boy is in good health. Persons who are ill, he claims, obtain no such reaction—the colorful tubes do not glow. The boy sits calmly, patiently, apparently feeling nothing. Later he has a sense of well-being and increased vitality.

IN THE inventor's library over the murky laboratory are many letters from acquaintances and friends who have written to say "thank you" for renewed health taken from Cook's mysterious chair.

In the "mineral room" are 155 glass jars of rare minerals from which he makes his materials, using a brazier to heat the mineral he requires, which changes to gas at a certain temperature, and smolders up through a long tube to be caught and sealed for future experiments. His experiments look simple when he performs them, but the results are often astonishing.

One ray he uses to revive rats and other small animals which he has killed with gas. This "life-ray," a plain glass tube 12 inches in length, is harmless to human beings, and its electrical vibrations, he explains, causes small animals to return to normal life within a few moments. Held against the palm of the hand, its red glow leaps up, tingles against the skin an instant, then gives a burning sensation. It also, Mr. Cook says, seems to vitalize inanimate objects, giving them temporary life, or a semblance of life, but no soul, and no intelligence. This latter experiment he undertakes only in private, being unwilling to make public what he believes is a form of mysticism.

Although his work room is strangely lit by dancing flames, tiny sputtering flares of variegated colors, including a violet "spider-ray" of great beauty, and is overhung by hundreds of reflecting globes, it is not a place of occult mystery. Francis Cook is a practical research worker, and every seemingly useless tube and wire has its purpose.

TWO specially designed ray-tubes, for example, will be used for electric advertising signs. He turns a switch, and blazing globes of fire rise in each tube, each blaze a different color, leaping toward the open top of the tube, flashing briefly, and disappearing. This keeps on endlessly, a novel and interesting variation of modern lighting, from which he expects to receive sufficient money to help him continue other experiments.

Being unemployed for a time doesn't worry him, for he is a capable chef as well as inventor. His experiments are all absorbing. He knows that a job will turn up, and feels that the possibilities of his creations are unlimited, once they are placed on the market.

Only when the gas man takes out the gas meter, and the lights are turned off, does he grow gloomy, since he needs both for experiments. Even that difficulty does not stop him for long. Electric power of the adjoining house can be used by the manipulation of a few wires, and the good-will of his next-door neighbors. Gas companies can be a temporary annoyance but—his work must go on.

HIS voice is quiet and soft when he talks about his "death-ray." A casual visitor may wonder a moment! Death-rays have been talked about for years, and come to little.

"It's a true death-ray," he murmurs, half to himself. And then—he demonstrates! He takes the narrow, harmless-looking tube, which trembles with power in his lean fingers, aims it at a piece of wood six inches thick. The ray slices through the wood as if it were butter. The same thing happens to a telephone book; the leaves part in the center and it falls in two halves. There is no flame to do the cutting, nothing but the bright purple ray shooting from the tube.

"The same power used in a machine gun will shoot 50,000 times faster than those now in use." He displays complete plans for his new electrical machine gun—an odd, fat-looking gun with a legend on the border of the paper, symbols known only to the inventor.

"This death-ray," he says, "is actually a water- and air-cooled electron ray projector, more powerful than anything of its kind."

In his tapestry-hung study he talks about Oriental mysticism, and tells the story of the two carved figures of women guarding the entrance. His life has been adventurous and exciting, with years spent in studying the secrets of the East. In early childhood he lived on the deserts of Arabia, and from there went to Egypt and India. Wherever he went he was baptized—a total of a dozen times.

HIS forehead is marked by a faint but clear star, and on his chin is the letter "M"—the mark, he says, for Master. These signs came gradually to his face during the intense religious periods of his baptisms, and the "M" is indicative of a man who will be a disciple of the next Master to teach mankind. Jesus, the inventor believes, was the seventh Master from the beginning of history, and he is convinced that the eighth will follow.

Among many inventions he plans to patent is a light-reflecting paint, a ray to produce colored flames for candles, a cathode ray machine for three-dimensional pictures, a tubeless radio, a self-charging electric motor, and a device to make possible higher vacuums for laboratory work.

Indian Girl Wears Doeskin Gown

THE only evening gown in America made of doeskin is owned by Antonette Wallace, Chippewa Indian girl.

At least Miss Wallace believes that she is the possessor of the only costume of this sort, and the designer who was ordered to make a certain Parisian pattern of skin instead of satin thought his client a little mad!

Miss Wallace, who lives quietly in San Francisco, once looked out over North Dakota plains and longed to be fashionable and smart! Like other girls, she wanted to be grown up and wear silks and satins in sophisticated fashion. Then, she was sent away to school and allowed to follow the customs of other girls in gowns and fads.

FOR awhile this seemed fun—and interesting! But as she grew accustomed to making herself into the average pattern, she found oddly enough that her liking for things which her forefathers had liked as they roamed the plains increased.

Now, completely fashionable in a pale-faced way, she suddenly found an aversion to woven materials taking form. Thus she decided that even her evening gown—so necessary in the cities—should be of leather—or skin! Accordingly she purchased quantities of doeskin and ordered a designer in the East to make it—and make it smart!

The trimming is also of Indian design, being merely a fringe made of the skin.

Often she wears it in the most sophisticated night clubs and people pass her, not knowing that they are looking at an Indian girl "gone native," because the gown, under lights, looks very much like soft dull velvet—very much indeed, Madame, as your best doeskin gloves would look pieced together and made into a dress!

One difference between Miss Wallace's doeskin creation and an ordinary evening dress is that the soft skin is perhaps a bit warmer, particularly if worn dancing. But—the modern party costume being what it is, rather abbreviated than otherwise—this may be considered an advantage by those who make a study of what is smart and comfortable as well. Its lines and texture are soft and graceful, flattering to any figure—and especially so to its charming Chippewa owner.

Sixty Seconds From Life "TINDER"

By John Richard Finch

SOMEWHERE in the building Jim Ware heard a clock strike two. The hotel cocktail lounge was deserted except for himself, the bar attendant, and a man who stood at the far end of the bar toying with a half-empty glass. Despite the lateness of the hour, Ware didn't feel like turning in. On the contrary, he wanted to talk to someone. A very definite desire for companionship possessed him. Draining his glass, he glanced down the top of the polished mahogany bar to where the other man stood. There was a chap who looked as though he might be in a kindred mood! Perhaps they might have a drink together! Why not? With a shrug, he walked over to the man's side, rested his elbows on the bar and spoke with an easy friendliness.

"Guess we're holding the ship tonight," he observed, indicating the deserted bar with a wave of the hand. The man, without turning his head, nodded to the mirror across the bar.

"Looks that way. I was just about to leave myself."

"Have a nightcap with me?"

"Thanks."

WARE summoned the attendant, who replenished their glasses.

"Staying here at the hotel?" Ware asked.

"No, I have an apartment uptown. My wife's spending the week-end in Philadelphia with friends. I was a bit lonely, and dropped in here for a spot." He smiled at Ware in the mirror. "And you? I can see you're not a New Yorker. It's my guess that you're here on business."

"Right," acknowledged Ware. "My home's in Chicago. I'm on a three weeks' tour of the East for my firm." Then, with a laugh, "Of course, I combine pleasure with business."

"That's always interesting."

"I find it so. One gets a pretty diverse cross-section of life in a job like mine. I make several of these trips a year as a buyer. Do business with all kinds of people. There's always the social end, too, you know. One night I dine at the Waldorf, another it may be a chop suey joint on Pell Street, and yet another with a quiet family in Jersey. It's the same everywhere—entertaining the prospective customer. You know the story. Last night, for instance, I dined in Philadelphia with a couple of love birds—love with complications. They were married—but not to each other." Ware chuckled. "I've known this chap for a good many years. He's done pretty well by himself with a firm here in New York. Seems he has a secretary, young, attractive—Dolores by name—whom he's crazy about, and from what I observed last night, she's plenty the same way about him. Whenever they get a chance, they run off to Philly or occasionally some place up-state for a week-end together. Seems Dolores has a doting husband, evidently a weakling of the first water, whom she can't bring herself to hurt, and Donald's wife won't divorce him. For four hours last night I acted as father confessor and confidant. That's just a sample of a night spent by a buyer. But I'm boring you. I'm sorry."

"On the contrary, I'm very much interested. This girl, Dolores—you say she was attractive?"

"One of the prettiest girls I've ever seen," said Ware with enthusiasm. "Unusual type, too. Red hair, and eyes like green velvet. Tall, slender and poised, sophisticated, cultured—you know the type."

"Yes, I know exactly what she was like. Lucky chap, your friend."

"Unlucky husband," laughed Ware. "I really believe I'd go gunning for Don if I were her husband and ever got wise."

"I believe I would, too," Ware's companion suddenly brought his flat down on the bar with a crash. "And that's just what I'm going to do," he cried, turning toward the astonished Ware for the first time. "Dolores is my wife—secretary to that damned Donald!"

HE STOPPED suddenly as a man and a woman entered the lounge and walked toward them.

"Hello, Jim," Ware froze as he recognized the voice. Without turning, he caught a glimpse of Donald Ainsley in the mirror, and at his side—Dolores. Ware saw the hand of the man in front of him steal toward his pocket. A revolver! A shooting! He swallowed a huge lump in his throat.

Then, to his astonishment, the two walked up to him, completely ignoring his companion. Ainsley grasped and shook his limp hand.

"We thought we'd catch you here," he said. "Got in from Philly about an hour ago."

"Have—have you two met this gentleman?" Ware stammered.

They had not. Ware heaved a relieved sigh. He caught an understanding look in the eyes of his companion as the latter's anger melted. Presentations were made. Ware called for drinks, and a toast was drunk to "happy days." In a few moments the man excused himself, whispering to Ware as he went out:

"It was another Donald I had in mind, and another red-haired Dolores. Just the same, I'm taking the first train to Philadelphia to bring her home. Thanks for the nightcap and—everything."

didn't cause any embarrassment; she was wearing a dress, and that was all that mattered. Tukua's favorite gown, however, is the white one with red round spots on it the size of a dollar. The fact that every girl in Napuka has one like it doesn't disturb her as it would an American girl. Slipping it on over her pareu, she is dressed for the evening. Tukua never has had a pair of shoes on her feet. She hopes to have a pair sometime: white shoes, to wear to church on Sundays. She wants to be the first girl on the island to have shoes. Even her father, who is chief, doesn't have them.

SO ATTIRED, she goes forth to meet Arik and dance with him in the moonlight, her bare feet shuffling the sand or rattling the coral pebbles, to the rhythm of three chords played on a mouth organ and the low hooting sound of a bottle blown across the top, and the chanting of her friends, till the moon sinks and the shadows spread and merge under the coconut palms and the night, peopled with ancestral spirits, flows gently down over the coral island.

THE OLD SALT

Important Things

A FELLER can't tell what's important in this world which is a point to bear in mind whilst educatin' the young.

I mind a whalin' voyage where for three months we was a-batterfingin' around the Pacific in a calm. Mostly I was aloft lookin' for whales and in all that time there warn't a cloud in the sky nor a spot on the sea. Then one day I see a tiny speck on that glassy water 'way off the port bow. It warn't a whale but it was somethin' and everybody went aloft for a look. It was still there the next mornin' and along about sundown we'd worked over to it. Well, it turned out to be an empty apple box.

But it was the only outstandin' event in them three months. We all stood at the rail to watch her drift past and we kept lookin' astern 'til dark closed in. Next day she was gone and the sea looked lonesomer than I'd ever seen it.

Well, 21 years later, come November, I had laid my ship into Mombasa and a feller came aboard. He was on the beach and hungry and he claimed to know me. He goes on to name the ships we'd sailed in, the whales we'd fought, and the storms we'd been through. But I couldn't place him; ships and whales and storms are pretty much alike 20 years astern. I was sorry, but I couldn't give him no berth in my ship on just his looks. Then as he turns away he stops and grins, "Say," says he, "you must remember that empty apple box."

So I took him on as mate.

Reminiscences Of A Rover

"THREE DAYS LATE"
By Peter Wolff

"In the gloaming, Oh my darling, when the lights are dim and low—
And the quiet shadows falling, softly come and softly go—
When the winds are sobbing faintly with a gentle unknown voice,
Will you think of me and love me, as you did once long ago?"

NOTHIN' like a song, son, to bring back memories. A song and a log fire sort of go together when the hour's late, and a man's heart grows quiet like.

You asked, son, was I ever in love before I met Mary? Tonight's a good time to tell what happened in the Bay of Naples when I was a youngster.

A blue-eyed, black-haired lass she was, Italian an' sweet. I was walking along the streets, wonderin' how long we'd be in Naples. She was with her parents, headed for home, an' she was so different from girls I was used to, that I followed them down a dark alley. A couple of rowdies began to bother them. I was a husky in those days, so I slashed into 'em, and the party was over in a minute or so. What the girl's parents did was to ask me home to dinner, and

I went, pleased as punch for lookin' like a hero. We got to a white plaster house overlookin' the bay. They all talked a few words of the King's English, which made it easy. The girl talked a little more than the old folks, an' we got real chummy. After supper she an' I sat out on the balcony, until it was dark.

OF course, her mother an' dad were just inside, watchin' us with one eye. Neapolitans don't have freedom, an' maybe it's just as well. It's good to be old-fashioned, an' for the week we laid up in Naples, I got a good idea of what old-fashioned is like. Everywhere we went, along the old people would come. It got to be so it wasn't funny.

I was terribly fond of the lass, an' felt she was fond of me. No one I ever knew understood me so quick. It was intuition, that's what it was, the thing that women have in place of reason.

Pretty soon, we fixed it up: I was to come back for her the following month. We had to run down to Cairo, which gave her time to get ready. We didn't dare ask her folks. They'd have been horrified at anything so sudden. We was goin' to elope, without askin' any questions. She gave me her picture to carry down to Egypt, an' I gave her an' old ring of my mother's.

I'd never noticed how the Bay of Naples looked at night. People don't see its deep blueness unless they're in love. When you're in love, son, you see everything through the eyes of the other person. You wear rose-colored glasses. The world was so clear an' beautiful.

It was five weeks before we made Naples again! I had a letter, sayin' she had promised the folks to marry another man, if I didn't come back an' claim her. Otherwise they'd put her in a convent out of a sailor's way.

When I got back, she'd been married three days. They wouldn't let me see her and explain. It was no use. She was married fast and hard to some young Italian. My heart crept into my throat when I heard it, an' I thought I'd never be quite the same. Sometimes I wonder if she thinks of me, an' the nights we spent holding hands, and lookin' at the soft, blue Bay of Naples.

Times like tonight her laugh comes back to me like a small pain.

SHE combs her hair carefully, piles it on top of her head in a wavy coil, and fastens it with a comb, leaving a great tuft of it projecting skyward like the plume of some strange bird. This is the height of fashion in Napuka.

Then she winds a fresh pareu around her body: holding the two-yard piece of red and white-flowered cloth behind her, she folds it forward and around from each end, tucking in one end at the back and tucking out the other in front, at the waist. So attired, she could run or swim for miles, and the garment wouldn't fall off.

This, however, is only the foundation garment for an evening such as this. Going back to her house—a one-room structure built of panels of woven coconut leaves fastened on a frame of small logs—she takes a dress from a cord that is stretched across one corner of the room. It is a knee-length, but high-necked and long-sleeved dress, of the cheapest cotton print. This isn't the only dress Tukua has: she has another one that she wore during the day. That one is older, and the points of her breasts have thrust through the flimsy material so that they stood bare to the gaze of passers-by, but that

Navajo And Zuni Braves Show Their Artistic Temperament When Asked To Lose A Battle To A Few White Men In New Texas Epic

Charming Jean Parker Takes the Lead in "The Texas Rangers," Being Filmed Near Gallup, New Mexico.

By Glenn Chaffin

GALLUP, NEW MEXICO — (On location with the King Vidor-Paramount production unit shooting "The Texas Rangers").

"If you're an Indian, you can't win." So proclaimed the mighty Sitting Bull many long years ago. Just the same, it's no fun being a loser on through the generations of time and there comes a moment in the life of every "Poor Lo" when he wants to break into the win column.

Thus it comes about that two hundred Navajo sheep herders and Zuni farmers, masquerading in Hollywood war paint as Apache braves on the plains and in the sandstone canyons of New Mexico under the direction of King Vidor. Featured in the screen play are Fred MacMurray, Jack Oakie, Lloyd Nolan, Jean Parker, Edward Ellis, Bennie Bartlett and Elena Martinez.

Louis Stevens' script sequence calls for a pitched battle between a small company of Texas rangers, about two dozen, and a couple of hundred Indian warriors, stripped to the breech cloth and ready for gore.

NOW here was a situation dear to the heart of the lowly redskin, who has been taking it on the chin from his white brethren for several hundred years. But the elation was short lived. The Indians were supposed to lose the battle. Woe is "Lo, the poor Indian." Huh? Lose the row? What a chance!

Spokesmen for the Navajo and Zuni braves immediately declared themselves in a stoical statement of purpose.

"Can't do. WE want to win. No win, no fight!" Just like the school kid who owns the only baseball in the block and refuses to allow his play-fellows to use it in the sandlot game unless he can pitch.

This was a novel situation in motion picture making. Hollywood actors are supposed to provide the temperament for all occasions, with now and then a director cutting up.

But MacMurray, Oakie, Ellis and Vidor were willing to sit and suffer in silence the heat of the noonday sun. Other top-hand players in the cast drew a bye for this particular sequence. The combined salaries of those mentioned would enable the Zunis to gold-plate their whole pueblo and the Navajos to equip their hogans with modern plumbing, but they are too wise in the trials and tribulations of motion picture making to add mental stress to the sun and wind burn and sand blisters so inevitable on a desert location.

OF COURSE, motion picture executives are used to coping with a certain amount of so-called artistic temperament, whether it rocks the walls of a blond cutie's studio dressing room or spills over on the adobe floor of an Indian hogan. So Sydney Street, production manager with the company and an old hand at juggling Indian problems, didn't exactly holler "wolf" at the red men's point blank refusal to lose the war. The average run-of-the-mill Indian (I'm not speaking of the "old grads" from Carlisle) is much like a child and Syd knew that one lollypop of kindness would be more effective than two threats to deny the boys screen credit. But it was no boy's job that faced him.

This particular Paramount picture, is to be an epic, no less, of the Texas Rangers, and will probably wind up by costing the company

The Entire Production Company at the Base of 500-Foot Sandstone Cliffs, in Magnificent Tse-Nal-Tse Canyon. Here Rangers and Indians Met to Plan for Battle—and What a Battle!

There ain't no two dozen Hollywood motion picture cowboys goin' to flatten the ears of two hundred Indians, even if the lads are rigged up as Texas Rangers.

There is no intent here to deride the Indians for their stand in the matter. They're proud and it just didn't seem cricket for them to lose when all the odds were in their favor. And it took a large amount of persuasion on the part of a lot of eloquent guys, including a few government agents, to convince the Zuni and Navajo braves that it was their lot to do and die for dear old Paramount.

That didn't make sense from their point of view. Let Louie Stevens rewrite the story. He has his portable typewriter with him. Ready to fight, ready to die, sure! Ready, at least, to fall off a cayuse and play dead for art's sake.

"But why can't we win? We can lick 'em, easy."

Of course you know who won! Sitting Bull was right.

But not until many honeyed words had been tossed across the camp fires by the pleading whites. "Now listen to reason, boys. We'll let you win the next fight, maybe, but we've just got to win this one. Why, the Texas Centennial would be a bust if we presented this picture, which is to have a part in the celebration, with a gang of Texas Rangers getting licked. Anyway, the Rangers are going to be reinforced by a company of soldiers. You can't expect to whip the United States army."

THAT got 'em. How well the Indians knew the truth of that crack. Shades of Chief Joseph in the North, of Geronimo in the South. Besides, that made the thing more reasonable.

Once the decision was made the Indians entered into the spirit of the occasion with complete abandon. And when those two hundred braves rode over the brow of a hill into the afternoon shadows of that red rock-walled canyon they were terrific.

Stripped to gee-strings and moccasins, dolled up in calico paint, their yells echoing and reaching from 500-foot cliffs, they presented a spectacle that stirred the hardened arteries of the Hollywood folk who are used to "first nights and sights." The picture crowd rose and cheered to a man.

Scenes of the actual combat between the Rangers and Indians, which followed, while thrilling, were less stirring to me than the almost dioramic vision of those mounted warriors silhouetted against the skyline in the mouth of the canyon. Thinly veiled by a film of red dust, bobbing and weaving on their swiftly running ponies, they looked anything but peaceful herdsmen and growers of corn.

The Navajo name for this red-walled desert hide-out is Tse-Nal-Tse, simply meaning Sand Canyon. Early Mormon settlers, holding religious service there, called it Communion Canyon. But the cowhands of New Mexico and Arizona (it is almost on the borderline between the two states) renamed it Wildcat Canyon and thus it is known today. Personally, I think this the most descriptive term. Its wild grandeur is as changeless as time.

Elena Martinez accompanied the main troupe to Gallup, but has donned no greasepaint while I've been here. Attractive youngster, though.

Learned that Harvey Dwight, assistant production manager, is from my home state, Montana. Like all northwesterners, he is a great trout fisherman. Lonely land for a fly tosser around Gallup with the fishing season on in full bloom.

This shooting exterior scenes in sound presents quite a problem, but the studios pay plenty for the best engineers available. Harold Lewis, sound mixer for the Indian scenes, was the only man on the set to rate an umbrella. And how he needed it.

And so, as the Indians say, goodnight all . . . p. s. They say something else, but I can't spell it.

You Can't Win With Odds of 35 to 1 Against You

Gamblers Used Dice
Back In 3000 B.C.
And Roman Legions Played at "Hazards"

By Peter Hurst

THE oldest diversion in the world is gambling. As far back as historians can trace vestiges of the human race the average man was interested in getting something for nothing, and as a result gambling became the first of our present-day vices.

In practically every excavation made by modern paleontologists, dice, the first weapons of gambling, have been found. There is good reason to believe, however, that only the upper strata of our forebears indulged in rolling the cubes, inasmuch as most of the dice boxes unearthed have been beautiful examples of ancient craftsmanship, about the size of a teacup, made of gold studded with precious stones.

Sophocles, the great Athenian tragic poet, gave credit for the creation of dice to Palamedes, a fellow Greek. He stated that during the lengthy siege of Troy Grecian soldiers amused themselves by throwing dice. Later discoveries, however, have proved Sophocles slightly in error, inasmuch as the siege of Troy lasted from 1500 B. C. to 1200 B. C., and dice have been found in ruins dating as far back as 3000 B. C. In early Roman times, and especially under the rule of the Caesars, gambling with dice, or "hazards," swept through the Roman Empire and even Mark Antony became an inveterate gambler. Mark devoted most of his spare time, between visits to Cleopatra, to playing "hazards" — but history tells us that he had very few "hot" days, and never made more than three straight passes in his life. Invading armies probably brought gambling with dice into France, England and other countries of Europe. Under the name of "hazards" it was mentioned in the works of Shakespeare and his contemporaries, and continues under the same title in those countries today.

The game known to Americans today as "Craps" is a direct offspring of "hazards" as played by the French and English, and was first introduced into this country by Count Bernard Mandeville Marigny, a dissolute French nobleman who, in the early 19th century, settled in New Orleans. His loose ways of living earned him an extremely bad name in the Southern city, and to him must go credit for only one thing — the evolution of the game now known as "Craps." Count Marigny liked nothing so much as gambling, and before many years had passed practically every resident of New Orleans knew all about 7's and 11's by virtue of personal contact with the Count. It wasn't long after his arrival in this country that his fellow towns-

These Youngsters Are Engaged in the Dubious Diversion of "Craps," a Direct Offspring of "Hazards" as Played in Europe, and First Introduced Into America by Count Marigny, French Nobleman Who Settled in New Orleans. He Was Known as "Johnny Crapaud," Meaning Johnny-the-Frog in French. Craps Was Associated With His Name and Known as Johnny Crapaud's Game — Later as Craps Game, Greatest Of All Indoor Sports.

people relieved him of his title and bestowed upon him the dubious name of "Johnny Crapaud," meaning Johnny-the-Frog in French. Eventually, the game of "hazards" was so closely associated with the Frenchman that it became known as Johnny Crapaud's Game. Later the Johnny was dropped and it was called Crapaud's Game. Finally devotees of the sport cut it to Crap's Game — and the greatest of all American indoor sports came into being.

UP to this time, however, Craps was peculiar to New Orleans and its immediate environs. Later in the century, as river traffic congested the Mississippi River, those notorious flowery-vested gamblers who operated on the passenger boats from St. Louis to New Orleans, picked up the game and spread it throughout the North, East and West, where its popularity increased by leaps and bounds.

Craps as a get-rich-quick device is an extremely poor investment, inasmuch as the "house percentage" is high enough to give the operator of the gaming table a steady and high return. In a straight game, and there are still a few left, there are technically twenty-one point combinations in Craps, as follows:

2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12
1-1 2-2 4-1 4-2 5-2 6-2 6-3 6-4 6-5 6-6
3-1 3-2 5-1 4-3 5-3 5-4 5-5
3-3 6-1 4-4

These figures would indicate that the person throwing the dice has as good a chance to make a "6" or an "8" as a "7," and that the chances are a mere three-to-two against a "4" or a "10," but bear in mind there are TWO dice and actually thirty-six combinations which are as follows:

2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12
1-1 2-1 3-1 4-1 4-2 6-1 6-2 6-3 6-4 6-5 6-6
1-2 1-3 1-4 2-4 1-6 2-6 2-6 3-6 4-6 5-6
2-2 3-2 5-1 5-2 5-3 5-4 5-5
2-3 1-5 2-5 3-5 4-5
3-3 4-3 4-4

The figures above show that there are six different ways to make a "7" but only five ways to make a "6" or an "8" — hence the odds are six to five. This also shows there are only four ways to make a "5" or a "9," and only three possible combinations to make a "4" or a "10." The chances of making any point in dice are as follows:

Point	Ways to Make Point	Odds Against Making Point
2	1	35 to 1
3	2	17 to 1
4	3	11 to 1
5	4	8 to 1
6	5	7 to 1
7	6	5 to 1
8	5	7 to 1
9	4	8 to 1
10	3	11 to 1
11	2	17 to 1
12	1	35 to 1

These figures only hold true in the case of an honest game "Loaded" and "miss-out" dice.

Only In Faro Bank
Has Player a Chance To Win Against Small House Odds of 2%

against which the average gambler has little chance, are as common to Craps as trick cards in poker. At a crooked Crap table the customer "comes out" with a pair of straight dice to determine his point and upon returning the dice to him the table operator throws in a pair of loaded "house dice," which are so designed by a redistribution of weight to come up more times on the number "7" than any other combination. Obviously, this raises the "house percentage," which is high enough under ordinary circumstances, to a point where the return is double or treble the usual amount.

In every form of gambling the odds are in favor of those running the game, whatever it may be. In Roulette the house percentage against the gambler is 5-5/19%, and of course it is 37-1 against his picking the right number. In Chemin de Fer and Baccarat the odds against the player are about 5%. Slot machines and ball-rolling machines have no fixed average, because the thousand-and-one mechanisms all are different. In the slot machines the percentage varies according to the avarice of the owner. If he is liberal the machines are regulated to pay 60-40. Usually the return is about 70-30, but just as often it is 80-20 and there are cases where it runs as high as 90-10 — meaning that for every 90 cents put in ten cents is returned.

ONLY one gambling game gives the player any sort of a chance to win money and that is Faro Bank, in which the odds in favor of the house are the smallest of any known chance game, scaling no higher than 2%. This, however, is one of the chief reasons why Faro Bank games are not operated in modern gambling houses inasmuch as the owners prefer to take their lucrative profits from dice, roulette, blackjack and "bird cage."

Therefore, if a man feels he must gamble, let him be warned accordingly. His chances of winning at Craps, Roulette, or Blackjack are extremely poor and in the most liberal of all games the chances are still against him. The fever of gambling is as intense and white-hot as the inside of an electric furnace. No man ever won consistently, and no man ever will, for even as the player is trying to get something for nothing so is the professional gambler.

Spring Weather Brings Out the Prints

No. H-3125

A Smart Peplum Frock for Formal or Informal Wear.

THIS charming peplum frock is smart for informal or party wear, and is surprisingly easy to make up. The high draped neck, caught with a clip at each side, is new, and the slightly flared peplum is short to accent the long, sleek lines of the skirt. The self-fabric belt ties casually at the back, with long ends falling below the knee line. In the short length, this dress will be a grand asset to your wardrobe. Made with floor-length skirt, it will win the admiration of your most exacting friend.

The model pictured is made of washable rayon crepe in a lovely new print design of dainty flower clusters on a pastel blue background. The material is smooth and supple, drapes well and holds at the seams. The pattern gives complete step-by-step instructions for making the frock in either length, formally long or informally short.

Send for Pattern No. H-3125, available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires 3 1/2 yards of 39-inch fabric in short length.

Fabric: Nu-clipper crepe from Arthur Beir, tubfast printed rayon, about $1 a yard.

GRAY IN VOGUE

IF YOU haven't a chic separate dressmaker coat hanging in your closet, your confidence should be somewhere near low ebb.

For not only are they necessary articles in every woman's wardrobe, but they are so flattering this year that even if you didn't need one you ought to have it anyway, just for vanity's sake.

Most of them do astonishing things to their sleeves, flaring them, flouting them, buttoning them or puffing them so that you immediately grow a little bit arm conscious and are apt to make sure you have good gloves to go with them.

Dark blue and brown are the best bets for the average wardrobe, though there's no denying the authenticity of gray this year.

RELIEF FOR EPILEPTICS! Detroit lady finds relief for husband. Specialists home and abroad failed. All seizures answered. Mrs. Geo. Dempsey, Apt. 4, 6900 Lafayette Blvd., West Detroit, Mich.

LOOKING BACK

The Hennessee family—Helen and John, with their two children, Mary and Roy—have come together again after Helen had separated from John because she thought him in love with Susan Jennings. Helen is recovering from an auto accident, and is being courted by a new friend, Glenn Anderson, "Rod." These two are about to go out when stopped by John, who reports that Mary had vanished from college. Hurrying to the college town, the Hennessees are met by Dr. Wingate, the university president. Roy searches without result. Later comes a radio flash that a woman and two men were seen in a mountain shack. Helen, on the verge of collapse, is comforted and put to bed. Dick Larson, Mary's wealthy young friend, receives word that the kidnapers have made demands for $20,000 and he is prepared to pay the ransom at once. Meanwhile, a youth has entered a downtown department store and his actions rouse suspicion in the minds of the clerks, who phone the police. The boy buys a lunch, goes to his car, and is followed by a plain police car. He gets a flat tire, gets out to repair it, and goes to find a telephone. He does not return.

Receiving the kidnapers' message, Dick sets out with the ransom money.

Chapter 19

HELEN found her nervousness increasing as the evening wore on. Roy was insisting that he should deliver the money, but Dick stayed firmly by his plans, and the older man agreed that it should be done that way.

Helen insisted on going along as far as the car drove Dick, because, she said, she felt that they were partially responsible for his grief, although Dick insisted that it was the curse of his money.

The men objected, thinking that Helen was not strong enough, but Mrs. Wingate agreed with her, saying that it would be easier on her nerves to be active than to sit at home waiting.

Mrs. Wingate lent Helen one of her light topcoats, a bright green tweed, which she had just bought

Dr. Frank McCoy on "Cherries And Milk"

IN ONE of my articles, I suggested a combination of cherries and milk, without the addition of other food for lunch. A veritable avalanche of letters arrived subsequently from all over the country. Here is a sample letter:

"Dear Dr. McCoy: I am surprised that a man of your great learning should be so ignorant about food combinations as to combine cherries and milk. Don't you know this forms a deadly poison? I wonder how many people have died as a result of this suggestion which you published. I hope you will correct the statement as soon as possible. Except for this instance, which must have been an error on the part of your stenographer, we have found your articles very instructive and helpful. Kindly explain why this appeared.

Mrs. M. B. C."

This statement was not the result of an error of my stenographer. It was purposely placed there to offset the popular superstition that cherries and milk, when combined, form a poisonous combination. Anyone who believes that cherries and milk make a bad combination, shows that he knows very little on the subject of food combinations.

Milk and acid fruit make a very desirable mixture, principally from the fact that the acid of the fruit helps to curdle the milk and this milk-fruit mixture can therefore be digested with greater ease than sweet milk taken by itself.

Curdling of the milk must take place as the first process in digestion. This is usually done by the gastric juices of the stomach which break the milk into curds, but these curds are often too large for quick digestion. Whereas fruit, taken at the same time as the milk, breaks the latter up into very small curds so that the digestive juices of the stomach can work more readily.

Try a lunch like this: use one pint of sweet milk with as many fresh, ripe, washed cherries as you desire. You will digest this perfect combination with ease and will find yourself ready for the afternoon's work. A single trial will convince you that there is nothing poisonous about using cherries and milk together.

Dick Stood by the Car and Helen Leaned Forward, Taking His Face Between Her Hands. "God Bless You, Son," She Choked.

because, she said, "It's one of those things you can wear the year 'round." It had three very large wooden buttons in the front fastened with a green cord. The collar could be worn open or up around the throat, and there were large roomy pockets.

"I feel like a schoolgirl in this," smiled Helen, trying to be pleasant, knowing that the others were very much concerned about her.

"You look like one, if you're interested in knowing it," said John.

Helen caught his eyes for a moment and then looked away. She was remembering a remark made by John in the kitchen one night about her being only interested in cooking. It had hurt, knowing that John had always admired Susan Jennings, and it had at that time made her feel very old. Rod, in the hospital, and dear Mary and Roy had saved her from this. It was strange to hear John talking like that.

She wondered if she was always to remember those hurts that John had caused—would always some ghost rear its head when he made certain statements?

Two cars were to be used in the trip, since all the men insisted on going. They feared that something might happen to Dick either that the kidnapper might waylay him before he reached the cemetery gate or that there might be more than one waiting for him.

"This might not be as much a plot against Mary as against Dick," said the attorney, "and if they were afraid he would recognize them afterward they might do something to prevent it."

Mrs. Wingate said she would be the typical housewife and not go. "I'll stay behind and have an early two-o'clock-in-the-morning breakfast waiting for you."

"Don't make it breakfast, make it supper," said Dr. Wingate. "Personally, I'd like some old English Rabbit. You know, honey, my old college recipe—a teaspoon of flour, a tablespoon of butter, about a half a cup of milk and two cups of creamed old English cheese."

"Oh, darling! I don't believe I have the right cheese."

"Sure you have, I saw it in the icebox. Just push it through a coarse strainer and stir it up with the milk and stuff and heat it. Then pour it over hot toast—pshaw! Wait till we get back and I'll fix it."

She gave him a gentle push. "Go on! I'll do it."

The cars started out under the beneficent rays of a glorious yellow full moon. The night was one for enchantment and not tragedy, thought Helen.

Strangely enough the beauty of the night, for some strange reason, made it hard to combat the thought of Mary. Was she in some lonely cabin, with only a bathing suit? Was she hungry—ill? Helen caught herself choking back a sob while she dug her fingernails into the palm of her hand. Mary, Mary! Beautiful, courageous, daring Mary! To suffer so!

The concern for Mary's safety increased as they left the town and the country round about lay so still and silent beneath the moon's blanket of silvery light.

It was obvious that Dick was nervous, for his jaws were closed tightly, as though the very setting of his teeth would help fight the tragedy which had engulfed him.

He sat with the attorney and the Doctor, both of whom were conscious of his battle. "Sometimes," said the Doctor, "it helps to make things dramatic—if you can feel that you're just in a play it helps to take the role—and keeps away a certain poignant homely pain. I think Shakespeare had some inkling of that when he wrote 'all the world's a stage.'"

"I hadn't figured it out that way," said Dick. "But I know none of this has seemed real. It's too preposterous, too fantastic—and too awful. I'm so glad to hear you say that. I was beginning to fear my own sanity—everything seemed so topsyturvy." Then, as though to echo Helen's thoughts, he added, "I don't dare picture Mary; I think then I should go stark, raving mad."

"Here, sir," said the Wingate chauffeur, "is about one mile from the south gate of the cemetery. Shall we stop?"

"Yes," Dick answered for the Doctor.

"Here is the money," said the attorney, handing Dick a securely wrapped package. "I wish—but no matter—good luck!"

Dick stood by the car, and Helen leaned forward, taking his face between her hands. Her cheeks were wet with tears. "God bless you, son," she choked, and fell back against the seat, sobbing.

Dick found no words, and merely walked away, the package containing $20,000 carried in his hands as loosely as though it had been a thick book from which he studied.

"He carries it as if it were a book," said the Doctor, noticing the familiar gestures.

"Yes," replied Rod. "It is a book, a book of life. From it he has learned a new courage. Strange textbooks the children study these days. Think how different his problems are as compared to those we faced. Did you ever go to school with a boy like that one the men described?"

"No," replied the Doctor. "Living was simpler years ago. Now it is complex."

Somewhere in the distance could be heard the call of a night bird, which broke the stillness engulfing them.

Helen lay quietly with her head on John's shoulder, trembling, while John patted her affectionately and occasionally kissed her. She had become very lovely and very beautiful to him in this trial and he thought how close he had come to losing her.

Gradually the men started talking, making attempts to solve the whole thing, and found that they disagreed greatly on the merits and demerits of the kidnaper—if he should be the boy every one suspected. Minutes lengthened into a half hour, and then an hour.

"He should be getting back now," said the Doctor, looking at his watch in the moonlight. "I'm not so sure he should have been permitted to go alone."

Soon, however, they saw him coming. He was walking very slow, and seemed stooped.

"He walks as though he might be injured," said the attorney, as they watched Dick come closer and closer.

The Doctor got out of the car and went to meet him.

"Are you all right, son?" he called.

"Doctor! I—I—" he gasped for air and collapsed, falling.

"Young Salt"

A Serial For Young Folks
Depicting the Adventures of Sea Scouts

By Paula Norton

When Frank and Craig, two high school boys, rented a small rowboat for a "cruise" on the San Francisco Bay, they little thought they would have a passenger. They dubbed the small, redhaired lad who begged to go along, the Sprout. The Sprout was thrilled to be in the company of these brave seamen, but he little knew they were no more learned in the ways of the sea with a boat than he was himself.

After rowing well out into the open the boys rested and let the choppy water toss them about while they ate their lunch. Then it was that by an awkward movement the Sprout caused one of the oars to go overboard. In attempting to retrieve it, the boat capsized and spilled all three of the boys into the bay.

Then it was that Frank and Craig discovered that the Sprout could not swim.

Chapter 4

THE gray water washed around the shoulders of the now nearly panic-stricken boys. The Sprout clung desperately to the keel, his thin legs dragging out into the water. His hands grew blue with cold, the knuckles were white; he was tense with desperate fear.

Frank and Craig scanned the distant banks for some sign of help. There were boats off there to the South, but they were too far away.

"Gosh, but I'm cold," said Frank, and all his former bravado was long since gone.

"Cold, heck! I'm tired!" Craig called back. Then he spoke in low frightened tones, "Are there sharks in this bay, Frank?"

Frank went white. "Search me."

The Sprout started to whimper. His teeth chattered, and he managed to gasp, "Ain't there no boats comin' to us?"

"Somebody'll come. Just hang on," said Craig. A long silence followed. Only the wash of the water against the boat and the shrill wailing of the seagulls broke the monotony. The cold was intense now, and Frank and Craig squinted through anxious eyes at the distant boats.

After a long time the Sprout said, "I can't... I can't hang on. I'm too cold!"

"You gotta, you gotta hold on!"

"But I can't. My arms are gettin' numb. My legs, too." Frank and Craig worked themselves around to the side where they could reach out and try to hold the boy.

Suddenly his legs drew up and the rigid fingers jerked away from their hold on the keel. His body started sliding down between the two who were trying desperately to save themselves and the Sprout as well.

Unable to speak... unable to see, the boy struck out with his hands and grasped for a hold. In his half unconscious state he grabbed Craig's shoulder and pulled him free of the boat. The gray water closed over them.

Frank yelled in panic, yelled with all the strength he could muster. He looked down, down, trying to pierce the depths of the muddy water. Then he saw Craig come to the surface and regain his hold on the gunwale. He was gasping and coughing.

As he struggled to fill his lungs with air, he sputtered, "We can't make it, Frank. We can't. I'm too cold. I had to break loose from him. Frank. He was holdin' me down there."

Something made Frank look around. His pounding heart almost strangled him. No it couldn't be. But it WAS!

"Look, Craig, a boat's comin'! Honest!"

Menu of the Week

By Joan Andrews

ASPARAGUS is so good and so inexpensive now that it really deserves to be the star of a meal, rather than a mere accompaniment for a meat course. Asparagus in cheese sauce is always popular as a luncheon dish, as is asparagus with Hollandaise. The other day, however, I ran across an excellent main dish recipe in which the asparagus shares starring honors with green peas. I have built a luncheon menu around this dish.

Asparagus and Peas in Egg Sauce
Fried Noodles

Hearts of Lettuce with Anchovy Strips and French Dressing
Strawberries and Cream Coconut Wheat Kisses

For the main dish, combine 2 cups of cooked fresh asparagus, cut in one-inch pieces, and 2 cups of fresh peas with 2 cups of hot white sauce and 2 hard-boiled eggs, cut up. Serve on toast. For the white sauce, use 2 tablespoons of butter, 2 tablespoons of flour and 2 cups of milk. Season with salt, pepper and 1 teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce. This will serve six people.

This is the coconut wheat kisses recipe: Beat 1 egg until very light. Then beat in, gradually, ½ cup of sugar. Add ¾ tablespoon of melted butter, 2 cups uncooked wheat flakes, ½ cup coconut, ¼ teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Drop from teaspoon on a greased pan and bake in a moderate oven 10 or 15 minutes.

I save money on Fine Tea

With a high quality tea, such as Lipton's, a little goes a long way. Because it is so full bodied you need less to get the required strength. With its unmatched flavor and low cost per package I could not afford to use anything else but Lipton's Tea.

Novel Fish Salads Are Welcome Change On Warm-Weather Days

Dinner Salads Of Fish Or Eggs Can Be Piquant — Here Are Five Recipes

By Jenny Reed
Home Economics Editor

SPRING makes it possible to serve salads in greater variety than during winter months. The hearty salad is most welcome in place of the hot luncheon dish considered necessary during cold weather.

Fish salads, combinations of eggs and vegetables, meat and vegetables, salads and cheese salads furnish many calories of protein and fat as well as mineral salts and vitamins.

Smoked or salted fish, canned or fresh fish are all good in salads, and may be as economical vegetables, it is possible to have a luncheon for a hot summer day with very little effort. If the flavor of onion is liked, add grated onion or garlic to dressing.

Cut up separately into small cubes

- 2 tablespoons roast beef
- 2 tablespoons boiled ham
- 2 tablespoons beef tongue
- 2 tablespoons chicken
- 2 tablespoons lamb
- 1 cup cold boiled potatoes or any other suitable vegetable
- 2 truffles finely minced boned anchovies

A Delightful Cottage Cheese and Fruit Combination and simple, or elaborate as the occasion demands.

Cottage cheese, cream cheese, and grated hard cheese are all excellent in salad combinations. Added to a fruit and gelatin mixture, shaped in balls or sprinkled lightly over the salad materials.

The dinner salad of fish or eggs conforms to the general rule for all dinner salads. It must be very piquant and appetizing. Shad roe and cucumber, eggs stuffed with highly seasoned spinach, eggs and pickle beets and eggs stuffed with sardines served with French endive are examples of good dinner salads. The dressing should always be a simple French dressing made decidedly tart.

TUNA ASPIC SALAD

- 2 medium cans Tuna
- ½ cup chopped parsley
- 3 hard-cooked eggs, sliced

In the bottom of a ring mold arrange a layer of hard cooked egg, sprinkle with parsley, then a layer of the flaked and drained tuna. Repeat until mold is filled to within ½ inch of top. Pour over the following aspic:

ASPIC

- Boil together for 5 minutes ½ cup vinegar, 1 chopped onion, 3 bay leaves, salt, pepper and 2 pints of water drained from freshly cooked or canned vegetables. Strain. Into the hot liquid stir 2 tablespoons of quick dissolving gelatin. Set aside until syrupy, then pour into mold. Chill until firm. Unmold and garnish with stuffed green olives and mayonnaise.

SUMMER DELIGHT

By buying the cooked meats for this salad at a delicatessen, and using any cold left-over or canned

Put the meats into a salad bowl, separating each kind by boned anchovies. Fill center with tartar sauce or mayonnaise. Cover sauce with parsley. Sprinkle truffles over all. Send to table as it is, for this salad should be mixed together only just before serving.

Good cooks take pride in a wide variety of salad dressing—everyone unique in its own flavor. The choice of a salad dressing is determined by the texture of the salad ingredients and the occasion upon which the salad is to be served.

ROQUEFORT DRESSING

- ¼ teaspoon paprika
- ½ cup French dressing
- ¼ teaspoon scraped onion
- Yolk of 1 hard-cooked egg
- 3 tablespoons Roquefort cheese
- 1 teaspoon cream

Add paprika to egg yolk and mash with silver fork. Add to French dressing. Force Roquefort cheese through coarse sieve and blend with onion and cream. Add to dressing and beat thoroughly with fork. Chill. Mix well before using. Makes ¾ cup dressing.

CHIFFONADE DRESSING

- ½ cup French dressing
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- 1 tablespoon green pepper, finely chopped
- 1 tablespoon red pepper, finely chopped
- 1 tablespoon chives, finely chopped
- 1 hard-cooked egg, finely chopped
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon paprika

Combine ingredients and blend. Chill. Mix well before using.

KING GEORGE'S LONELY PETS

THREE of the late King George's pets are lonely since he has left them, and one is able even to express his sorrow. Alice Boorman Williamson tells about these three. Jock, the white Highland pony, Bob, the little cairn terrier, and Charlotte, the gray Australian parrot. It is Charlotte who continually voices the plaintive query, "Where's the Captain?"

The late king got Charlotte in an Eastern port while he was in the Navy. Until his death, she was his constant companion. She traveled with him in life and was in the funeral train on its journey from Sandringham to London. Now Charlotte misses her beloved comrade and greets every visitor to the royal study with the puzzled question, "Where's the Captain?"

Jock, the pony, walked in the simple procession from Sandringham to the station, and now he is back at the palace, never again to carry his beloved master on his back, and with Bob as his companion.

The present king, Edward, has his father's love for animals. When he was a little boy, he was one day gazing pensively out of the window. When asked what he was thinking, he replied, "When I am king I shall do three things. I shall pass a law against cutting puppy-dogs tails. I shall not let them use bearing-reins on horses, and then I shall do away with all the sin in the world!"

THE LARGEST FOOT

THE elephant is generally known to be a good traveler, says L. E. Eubanks. He points out that on rough ground, an elephant can leave a horse far behind. Also, in spite of his size, the elephant is surprisingly agile and quick.

One of the most remarkable things about an elephant is his feet. They are encased in a bag-like skin with a heavy padded bottom that is something like an anti-skid tire. An elephant walks on his toes, while the bones of his foot run not only back, but up. At the back of the foot is a gelatin-like substance that is a very effective shock-absorber.

Another curious thing about the elephant's foot is that it swells when his weight is upon it, and it contracts when the weight is removed. Thus an elephant can have all four feet in a swamp, yet as soon as he lifts a foot, it will contract and come right out.

Kitchen Tips For Springtime

ON rainy days let the children crack nuts and take out the meats. Save the perfect halves for decorating cakes and cookies while the broken pieces are kept separate for nut or fruit breads. Keep your nut meats in tightly covered tin boxes or fruit jars. They need a cool storage place, too. In the summer keep in the refrigerator, so they won't get rancid or musty.

As a precaution always line the bottoms of cake pans with waxed paper. Grease the pan before you put the paper in, and then grease the paper.

I like to sprinkle coconut, or currants, or thin strips of citron, or chopped nuts over some of my little cakes before they're baked. I find these cakes are as popular with my guests as the more elaborate frosted ones.

When I measure egg whites, I set my measuring cup right on the platter or in the mixing bowl. Then it's an easy matter to empty the whites without spilling them.

To beginners: Egg whites don't beat up well if any of the yolk gets in with them. Take it out with the point of a teaspoon or a bit of clean, sharp egg shell before beating.

I often use left-over egg yolks in custards. You can use your favorite custard recipe with two yolks in place of each whole egg called for. If yolks are broken, just measure them by the cup. It takes 6 or 7 yolks to fill half a cup.

If I want to frost angel food cake, I rub off the brown crust on the sides and bottom of the cake with my fingers just as soon as it's out of the pan. Then I have a smooth white surface for my frosting.

MOUNTAIN NEIGHBORS

By EDITH M. PATCH and CARROLL LANE FENTON

SO many stories are written for children about the animals they see every day it is fun to find a book about the wild ones most children have never seen.

In Mountain Neighbors there are fourteen stories that will give you a very vivid picture of the habits and lives of the porcupine, the mantled ground squirrel, the mountain goat, mountain lion and many others.

The make-up of this new Macmillan book is very interesting. There are many black and white pictures, some of them photographs and some are drawings. The type is especially fine for youthful readers, being large and round and very clear.

Two naturalists combined their knowledge of mountain life and their ability to entertain in making this instructive volume.

GREEN GROWS THE GARDEN

By MARGERY BIANCO

WHENEVER a book is authored by Margery Bianco, it is bound to be a winner. This time Miss Bianco has turned to the subject dear to every person, young or old, who loves the Springtime and owns a little patch of earth too. And surely there is no greater fun than getting out in a garden with the first robin.

By listing the titles of some of the chapters you will know how many important garden subjects are discussed in Green Groves the Garden. There is a lot about House Cleaning in the Garden. In the Herb Garden (this one is especially fascinating), Making a Rock Garden. In an English Garden. Growing Flowers From Seed, and just lots of others.

The book is a smallish volume, just right to carry about in the pocket of your garden smock. The illustrations are by Grace Paull, and they are as spirited and charming as Green Groves the Garden itself.

BLUE EYES

BLUE BIRD said, "Come Willow Whistle, take um eyes from pretty face.

Girl with yellow hair not for you, she not member of your race."

Willow Whistle though still stood there. He must have a longer look At the girl who looked like fairy out of pretty picture book.

"Come," said Blue Bird very sharply, "Such girls' ways are not your ways."

Willow Whistle did not hear her. Still he stood with raptured gaze.

Those big eyes were gazing at him—and the lips gave him a smile, That he knew was for him only, so he lingered yet awhile.

"Come," said Blue Bird, "Silly fellow, she no play or talk to you

You must have a squaw with black eyes, maybe brown but NEVER blue.

You just Indian Willow Whistle, keepum eyes where they should be. Indians tend to Indian business, also see what they should see."

Blue Bird's words were very wise ones, and they woke him from his dream.

THIS was just a blue eyed picture. Pictures are not what they seem.

So he turned his back on BLUE EYES, for the one with eyes of brown,

She belonged on reservation, Golden Hair belonged in town.

Modern Girl's Morality Undisciplined, Says Scribe

"Even If Women Have A Right To Sin, They Harm Themselves," Writes Margaret C. Banning

By Lillian G. Genn

WOMAN no longer wants to be good, is the latest lament of the modern man.

Ever since she quit her pedestal to step down and frisk about, men thought it was only a question of time until she would tire of it and return to her ancient job of keeping the world decent.

But it now appears that women have no intention of returning to their pedestals, and men are very much perturbed and pained at this state of affairs. Someone has to uphold the moral standards. If women don't do it, who will?

Margaret Culkin Banning, who is a keen observer of the modern scene, analyzed the situation and pointed out that women will have to get busy and do something about it before they become the neglected sex.

The author of many articles and stories is a charming woman, very feminine in manner. She has deep blue eyes and black hair and looked very attractive in a smart black-and-white ensemble.

WARNING TO WOMEN

THE woman who goes to questionable places, who drinks and swears, is going to be treated abominably by men. The clever woman is one who chooses rights that will be of advantage to her. The other rights she accepts, but doesn't use. This is giving her plenty of leeway.

Women have always maintained the taste of the world, and they should continue to do so. Those who go to prize-fights and show pleasure at the brutality are pulling down all the things that women have built up for generations. It doesn't do them any good. They are only taking advantage of their rights, and doing everyone harm.

—Margaret Culkin Banning.

"There's no doubt that women are no longer getting the respect from men that they once had," she said. "You don't have to go about very much to realize that men are saying hard things about women. And they're writing bitterly of them."

"Even when they're not outspoken, you can sense their resentment and suspicion. They are skeptical of woman's motives and loyalties. In fact, it seems that the tables have now turned. Where in pre-suffrage days women held a grievance against men, today men hold a grievance against women."

"The early feminists had been very anxious to bring about greater understanding and harmony between the sexes. If this hasn't been achieved, then women must look into the matter, see where the fault lies and what can be done about it. Otherwise there will be unhappy results for both men and women."

THE things men resent were briefly summed up by Mrs. Banning as follows: Women are taking men's jobs and depriving them of bread; they want political recognition but not political punishment; their morality has become undisciplined and unreliable, and yet they want the protection of the law as never before. Further, their social cost is no longer justified by their domestic work nor by their child-bearing.

"Much of this indictment is very unfair," Mrs. Banning said. "The limitation of childbearing is often instigated by men. Women put bread into men's mouths as well as take it out. Men will admit this if you put it to them, but nevertheless it doesn't destroy the ill will that exists."

"Of course, men who haven't jobs are bound to be resentful of women who are employed. There aren't enough jobs to go around, and if some one has to go without them, it ought to be woman. These men believe that if women would get out of industry, the depression would be over."

"This is absurd, for there are few women working who could live without public or private help if they were deprived of their jobs. They have aged or sick parents or relatives dependent upon them or they are supporting younger brothers and sisters."

"While the men's attitude is unjust, yet you can't help feeling sorry for them. They regard themselves as the jobholders in life. They have to be idle while many girls and women have jobs. A woman can be out of a job and not lose face. But the same isn't true of the man.

"Naturally, when a woman marries and holds on to her job, the resentment is greater. The situation is a serious one and it may get worse. People are already trying to push laws that will make it illegal for married women to hold positions in schools. Such sweeping laws are likely to have devastating consequences. There are too many cases where a woman has a perfect right to hold her job."

HERE Mrs. Banning brought out that the men are just as critical of the woman who is dependent.

"They'll figure out how much an idle woman costs a man and that she doesn't give enough in return. All she does is go to movies, dances and teas. She spends time shopping and gossiping. What she contributes to society is very little indeed, and the men don't like it. They regard her as being too expensive."

When women first emerged into world affairs ambitious to accomplish something, it was only to be expected that the men would be antagonistic. They weren't used to the idea of women doing anything outside of the home.

"It was thought that in time the men would get over their resentment," Mrs. Banning said. "What has happened is that their resentment has deepened."

"I don't believe the depression is to be blamed for it. This has merely brought it to a crisis."

"When we probe into the matter, we find that the underlying reason for their resentment is that woman has discarded many of the qualities that made her valuable to men. She has given them much less to count upon than in the past, and little to admire."

"Most of the things that women have done, men could have done. They've had a great deal of fun and created a stir. But they haven't added much of value to human accomplishment and experience. This is the deep belief that the men have."

Mrs. Banning pointed out that not only the men but also the college boys are beginning to look askance at the other sex.

"The boys are very wary of their girl friends. They have the idea that if they don't keep their eyes open they may be used to their disadvantage or cheated."

"They like the companionship of girls, they dance with them and share their sports. They think they're charming and attractive. But, like their fathers, they mistrust them."

"Men of any importance have always believed that morality is necessary to society. They may not agree as to what personal virtue is, but they all feel that it's necessary to have some order in society."

"Even though men enjoy greater opportunities for playing around than they ever did, they don't like the general lack of principle among women. Some of them are really worried about it. They don't see how the world will get along without it."

"Men are reluctant to accept changes in women. But they come around to them when they believe they are an improvement. Women asked for a change so that there could be a better relationship between men and women, a more truthful morality and greater social usefulness. They claimed that the position of woman was slightly degrading."

"But what has happened? Women have simply gone into competition with men in having emotional adventures. I suppose," smiled Mrs. Banning, "this was natural enough because it was not only the most exciting field but the one in which they had been most discriminated against."

"The only trouble is that women aren't capable of having emotional adventures. They haven't the nervous system for it. And their possessiveness doesn't suit them for it, either. The result is that they have only succeeded in degrading themselves."

"Men resent the fact that the women have destroyed the old values and haven't replaced them with anything better. They hesitate to do anything more for women because they are frightened of what will happen to society."

"Men are much more fundamental when it comes to the future well-being of the race. They want to protect the necessary guards for future generations."

"They feel that their job has to do with supporting the family. It should be woman's job to earnestly uphold the moral end.

"I think that if a woman is earning her own way in the world and accepting the responsibilities of a man, then she has every right to his numerous privileges.

"But I certainly don't think it's fair for the woman who is still being supported, as most women still are, to play it both ways.

She has no right to those privileges. Yet it's these women, who have a great deal of leisure on their hands, who are pulling down the whole sex."

"If you go to the country clubs, particularly in the suburban places, you'll find that it is these women who are doing the drinking and adventuring."

"SUPPOSE women have a right to break down their own chastity and to sin as much as men. Admit the right. I think they are doing themselves terrific harm. There are few women in the world who can stand emotional promiscuity."

"Men seem to be a little quicker to see this than women. If the race is to be happy, if future generations are to be protected and to progress, they can't have women destroy themselves the way they are now doing."

"Women must either protect themselves or be protected. Emotionally and physically they go to pieces quickly and they are taking no means to protect themselves."

"I think that the woman who lets herself in for a moral breakdown is really a very pitiful object and a horror to herself. One thing about men is that they can take sex in their stride."

"What women must do is to expand their interests so that they will be able to place sex in its proper proportion. It's only one part of life and they must not make it the whole of life."

"Men don't have to be handsome or young to have emotional adventures. But a woman must have youth or beauty or both. When these go, what has she left in life? If she does engage in affairs when she is older, then she is regarded as ridiculous by everyone."

"No, if women are going to play that kind of game, there is nothing but ruin for them in the end."

"I don't agree with those who claim that feminism has proved futile. In spite of the fact that it has brought women more burdens than they had realized it would bring, it has brought them a better understanding of life."

"Feminism will progress. It will get better. Women as yet haven't realized the full implications. They have to establish more amicable relations and restore the moral values that are essential to life."

"This doesn't mean that they need be prudish. It doesn't mean going back to the double standard. But it means creating a single standard of decency for both men and women. It means establishing relations both can trust."

TRITON

100% PURE PARAFFIN-BASE • Quality Leader

TRITON does everything any fine motor oil can do to protect your motor—and in addition gives you a plus feature found in no other oil.

It keeps your motor cleaner—prevents the accumulation of carbon that causes the motor to knock.

Triton is so pure, due to the Propane-Solvent process by which it is refined, that it forms almost no carbon in the combustion chamber. Previous carbon deposits burn, peel off and blow out the exhaust as you drive.

Tests have proved that a new car run with Triton will never develop carbon knock with any grade of gasoline that was satisfactory at the start.

No wonder so many fleet operators, mechanics, new car dealers and other experts are enthusiastic about Triton.
